

REJECTED VERDICT FOR DAVIS DENIED IN LOTTERY TRIAL

S. Judge's Action on Ground Evidence Would Justify Belief He Knew Law Was to Be Violated.

DIRECTOR GENERAL AS MERE FIGUREHEAD

Id Says He Bought Davis' Moose Contract for $600,000. Was in Charge at Time of Alleged Lottery.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—The government rested today in the lottery trial of United States Senator James H. Davis, lifetime director-general of the Loyal Order of Moose, and testimony for the defense was begun.

The defense's first effort apparently was to show that because of official duties Davis was largely figurehead in the Loyal Order of Moose at the time the alleged lotteries were conducted.

The court denied a defense motion for a directed verdict, but gave the defense the right to renew it at any time.

The motion was denied on the ground that the judge considered the jury would be justified in believing that Davis knew the law was to be violated by interstate shipments of alleged lottery tickets.

Argument on the defense's part was held during the lunch recess and with the jury absent.

Defense testimony was called, and W. Jones, described by the government as Davis' financial adviser, testified that, before the party balls at which the prosecution charges lotteries were held, he had assigned to him and another man his organization department contract with the Loyal Order of Moose.

The government has shown that some of the proceeds of the Moose party balls went to the organization department and it asserted that in effect Davis was that department.

Jones testified was brought out to indicate that before the party balls Davis had practically withdrawn from active part in the party and therefore might not know anything about the alleged lotteries.

Organization Department.

Jones related today that he carried on organization work and sometimes used the title of "Assistant to the Director-General," and sometimes of "Director of Organization." The organization department, he testified, had only a confidential relationship to the Supreme Lodge of the Moose.

Jones said the organization department had headquarters in St. Louis, no office in Mooseheart, Ill., was in no way responsible or accountable to the Supreme Lodge, but it received $1800 yearly from the Supreme Lodge for office expenses.

"Do you know if Senator Davis since interested in other matters about Sept. 1, 1930?" "Yes, he was nominated for the Senate in Mississippi."

Joseph A. Jenkins, Jones said, "is my partner." This was struck out, and Jones explained that Jenkins was the Moose organizer for Great Britain. He told of sending a cablegram about May 26, 1931, to tell Senator Davis I would help and he agreed Jenkins would be the logical man to help Jenkins came back from England in August, 1930.

Organization Contract.

Defense Attorney Margiotti led Jones up to Davis' organization contract with the Moose, which the government put into evidence. Jones said that at a meeting with Davis the contract was assigned to himself.

Jones said "Strike that out," ordered the court. "The jury will understand it."

Jones had testified that up to September, 1930, Davis was the organization department of the Moose. The government showed that its witnesses that the organization department received some of the receipts from the 1930 and 1931 Moose party balls.

Jones testified that, after his nomination to the Senate, in the fall of 1930, before either of the party balls had been held, he withdrew from active control of the organization department and continued as head of the department.

Jones said that he and another man continued to handle the party balls and that they were not responsible for the alleged lotteries.

4 KILLED WHEN WINGS OF TWO PLANES LOCK

Machines Crash on Boulevard While Circling Above Los Angeles Airport.

WHITTIER, Cal., Sept. 26.—Four persons were killed when two airplanes locked wings and crashed on Beverly boulevard, near Pico, yesterday.

The ships were circling above the Los Angeles Eastside Airport at an altitude of about 300 feet when the wings interlocked, police were told.

The passengers of one plane were identified as James E. Hill, 31 years old, of Los Angeles, and Rolfe G. Cadlen, 25, in the other ship were James L. Wisner, 22, of Los Angeles, and his wife. The crash was witnessed by passing motorists.

Two Killed at Evanston, Wyo., When Plane Motor Stalls.

EVANSTON, Wyo., Sept. 26.—Henry Halkjian, 26 years old, and Charles McCuag, 22, were killed by the crash of Halkjian's airplane after the motor stalled here late today.

EXPENDITURES FOR RELIEF INCREASE 87 PCT. IN YEAR

Outlay for July Compared by U. S. With That of Same Period in 1931.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Relief expenditures in 125 cities during July were reported yesterday by the Children's Bureau of the Labor Department at $21,769,238, a decline of 4 per cent from the June total, but an increase of 87 per cent over July, 1931.

The bureau's figures came from 375 agencies, the report said, adding that the total approximated the amount spent in December, 1931.

"Growing dependence upon the county as a financing and administrative unit for relief is reflected in reports showing six times as much expended for relief by county departments this year as compared with July a year ago," the report said.

U. S. NAVY BALLOON REPORTED AT WARSAW

No Word From Other American Entry in Gordon Bennett Cup Race.

By the Associated Press.
BASEL, Switzerland, Sept. 26.—The American balloon "U. S. Navy," participating in the Gordon Bennett Cup race, was reported over the outskirts of Warsaw this evening, flying southeast at a height of about 2,600 meters.

The "Goodyear 8" piloted by W. T. Van Orman, and eight other entries had not been reported since the takeoff yesterday. It appeared that the American entries were in an excellent position to win the race.

The 16 balloons were released here late yesterday and a strong north wind carried them away from the Alps, some of them heading north.

All balloons carried mail to be posted at the nearest spot to which they land. Arrangements were made to keep pilots informed of weather condition by radio.

The Austrian balloon, Ernst Brandenburg, landed at Kreszenz, Czechoslovakia, at 8:15 a. m., and the German balloon, Deutschland, at Füssen, Czechoslovakia, at 9:45 a. m.

At noon the French balloon Lafayette was reported to have landed safely near Scheldau in Upper Silesia.

$300,000 SEAL SKIN AUCTION BEING HELD AT FUR HOUSE HERE

80 Per Cent of World's Annual Supply Offered; Furs From Pribiloff Islands.

The semi-annual auction of Government seal skins, held today at the Fur House, 200 North 10th street, was expected to bring about $300,000 for the 25,000 pelts offered. This is about 80 per cent of the world's annual supply.

Henry O'Malley, United States Commissioner of Fisheries, said prices were about as low as those at the spring sale in New York when most of the skins were withdrawn because of low bids. A consignment of 400 skins sent by the Japanese Government was withdrawn for the same reason today by Auctioneer Foulke.

The skins come from Pribiloff Islands where the seal herd is under protection of the Government. By the terms of international agreement 15 per cent of the receipts go to Japan, and 15 per cent to Canada.

The sale was attended by buyers representing 33 fur establishments throughout the country, most of them in New York. In addition to the seal skins about 500 blue fox pelts were offered.

Two Men Shot Dead in Ohio Coal Field.

By the Associated Press.
ATHENS, O., Sept. 26.—Two men were shot and killed in the Hooking Valley mine field late last night and early today. The dead were Clarence Banfield, 35 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Banfield of Huntington; Boyd Vincent, 41, of Luray, an active strike leader.

Young Banfield was said to have been an innocent victim of the strike troubles at the mine of the Ohio Coaleries Co. near which he lives. This mine has refused to accept Gov. Whitte's 10-point program to settle the strike and has been the scene of trouble since other mines in the region accepted the peace plan and resumed operations last week.

Men ambushed in the hills near the mine had been sniping during the night and the early morning hours. As young Banfield and his brother were preparing breakfast, a shot was fired and Banfield fell dead. The young man was not a miner.

By the Associated Press.
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 26.—The strife between factions of Illinois miners caused a street riot here yesterday in which a policeman was killed and 20 or more other persons injured, two gravely. As a group of about 50 miners belonging to the United Mine Workers of America marched on a meeting to their hotel headquarters they were met by a group of pickets belonging to the Progressive Miners of America. Officials estimated the number of pickets at 100.

Surrounded by jeering pickets, who opposed their intention to return to work at the reduced wage scale, the United Mine Workers made their way toward their hotel, the Leland.

Detective Sergeant Killed.
As they neared the hotel, which was only three blocks from the ex-governor's mansion occupied by Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, the United Miners were cut from the entrance by a flanking movement.

A shot was fired, allegedly from the ranks of the United Miners. The insurgent group closed in, clubs were brought down, gas, flash, knives flashed and more shots were fired.

A Springfield detective, Sgt. Walter Williams, among the number adding to restore order, fell, was wounded. On the ground with three stab wounds was Garnet Smith, who was later charged with shooting Williams. Smith was a member of the United Mine Workers. One of the Progressive Miners, Dominic Dirigalano, Springfield, was shot and seriously wounded.

Fight in Hotel Lobby.
The fight, at times, was carried into the hotel lobby, then back onto the streets. Sheriff's deputies and members of the Illinois highway police were sent to aid city police and used tear gas bombs to restore order.

When the melee was over, police led 24 members of the United Mine Workers under arrest and charged with inciting a riot. Among their number was William J. Sneed, a former State Senator from Herrin, Mo., who has been a spokesman for John L. Lewis, international president, in the present controversy.

Both miners' factions sought to hold the other responsible for the riot.

Among others injured in the riot were Bozo Danich of Bentley, Pa., international organizer of the United Mine Workers, who suffered injuries to his head and chest; Edward J. Donnell of Summit Hill, Pa., who was strangled; Dan McMill, Springfield, a leader in the Progressive Miners, shot in the left hip; W. A. Pace, 57, Herrin, a carpenter, brother of A. T. Pace, international auditor, a broken nose; Patrolman Alva Snyder, body bruised.

Sneed and other union organizers were making arrangements for the return to work of men willing to do so at the reduced wage scale. Miners opposed to the reduced scale accepted by the United Mine Workers bolted several months ago and organized the Progressive Miners' movement.

Bonds of the amount of $500 each were provided for Sneed and others, including officers and organizers of the United Mine Workers of America, held for rioting. Two others held on the same charge, Danich and W. A. Pace, were in St. John's Hospital here, under technical arrest, until they, too, provide bond.

As bonds were made for the official group, a crowd of pickets opposite the jail was driven back to the ends of the block.

As a group of about 50 miners belonging to the United Mine Workers of America marched on a meeting to their hotel headquarters they were met by a group of pickets belonging to the Progressive Miners of America. Officials estimated the number of pickets at 100.

Surrounded by jeering pickets, who opposed their intention to return to work at the reduced wage scale, the United Mine Workers made their way toward their hotel, the Leland.

Detective Sergeant Killed.

As they neared the hotel, which was only three blocks from the ex-governor's mansion occupied by Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, the United Miners were cut from the entrance by a flanking movement.

A shot was fired, allegedly from the ranks of the United Miners. The insurgent group closed in, clubs were brought down, gas, flash, knives flashed and more shots were fired.

A Springfield detective, Sgt. Walter Williams, among the number adding to restore order, fell, was wounded. On the ground with three stab wounds was Garnet Smith, who was later charged with shooting Williams. Smith was a member of the United Mine Workers. One of the Progressive Miners, Dominic Dirigalano, Springfield, was shot and seriously wounded.

Fight in Hotel Lobby.

The fight, at times, was carried into the hotel lobby, then back onto the streets. Sheriff's deputies and members of the Illinois highway police were sent to aid city police and used tear gas bombs to restore order.

When the melee was over, police led 24 members of the United Mine Workers under arrest and charged with inciting a riot. Among their number was William J. Sneed, a former State Senator from Herrin, Mo., who has been a spokesman for John L. Lewis, international president, in the present controversy.

Both miners' factions sought to hold the other responsible for the riot.

Among others injured in the riot were Bozo Danich of Bentley, Pa., international organizer of the United Mine Workers, who suffered injuries to his head and chest; Edward J. Donnell of Summit Hill, Pa., who was strangled; Dan McMill, Springfield, a leader in the Progressive Miners, shot in the left hip; W. A. Pace, 57, Herrin, a carpenter, brother of A. T. Pace, international auditor, a broken nose; Patrolman Alva Snyder, body bruised.

4 KILLED IN CRASH OF STOLEN AIRPLANE

Inexperienced Pilot and Two Aids Kidnap Watchman at Rio de Janeiro Port.

By the Associated Press.
RIO DE JANEIRO, Sept. 18.—Three men kidnaped an airport watchman yesterday, stole a commercial airplane and apparently attempted to fly to the rebel capital of Sao Paulo, but the plane crashed and all four were killed. The wreckage of the plane was found 15 miles south of Rio de Janeiro near Merly. Witnesses there said the pilot had dived crazily just before the crash, indicating a lack of experience in flying. Police said the leader of the expedition was Walter Voss, a German. He and John Lusk, a Sao Paulo merchant, they said, plotted with Ernest Cabelero, a Brazilian employee of the company, who was at the field all night. These three, with the watchman, were found dead in the wreckage of the plane. They surmised that the three men forced the watchman into the plane at the point of a pistol. The wrecked plane had been well fueled and apparently made ready for a long journey. Police said Voss was 42 years old and was a former employee of various airplane companies.

ACTRESS' MARRIAGE ON ROCKS

Dorothy Hall Plans Divorce From Neal Andrews, Manufacturer.
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Dorothy Hall, Broadway actress, announced today that she and her husband, Neal Andrews, cosmetic manufacturer, had separated and that she would seek a divorce in Mexico or Reno "as soon as possible." They were married six years ago. An agreement reads as follows: "We have decided to separate, permitting each to live his or her life as he or she chooses. We have nothing but good will toward each other."

AUGUST G. BRAUER DIES; LUTHERAN LAY LEADER

Two Sons of Stove Supply Man Ministers, Two Daughters Wives of Pastors.

August G. Brauer, head for 50 years of the A. G. Brauer Supply Co., and prominent layman of the Lutheran Church, died today at his home, 1128 Hawthorne boulevard, of pneumonia, following an illness which began last March. He was 75 years old. Mr. Brauer was born in Pittsburgh, and had lived in St. Louis since the age of 15. He started, a half-century ago, the stove and furnace repair business which grew into the present supply house, at 112-118 North Third street. He was a director of the United Bank & Trust Co., and was for 17 years a member of the board of control of Concordia Seminary. He was secretary of the Lutheran Laymen's League. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Caroline Brauer, and by three sons, two of whom are Lutheran clergymen, and three daughters, two of whom are the wives of Lutheran clergymen. The sons are the Rev. Walter C. Brauer of Evanston, Ind., the Rev. August E. Brauer of Columbus, Ind., and Oscar P. Brauer, vice-president of the supply firm. The daughters are Mrs. Lulu Oberholte of St. Paul, Minn., and Mrs. Ella Krause of Sheboygan, Wis., ministers' wives, and Mrs. Henry Elling of Geneseo, Ill. The body will lie in state Wednesday at Emmanuel Lutheran Church, Jefferson avenue and Armand place, from 10 a. m. until the funeral, to be held at 2 p. m. Burial will be in Concordia Cemetery.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR STUART G. STICKNEY

Former Trans-Mississippi Golf Champion Died Saturday Night; 55 Years Old.
The funeral of Stuart G. Stickney, former city, state and trans-Mississippi golf champion, was held this afternoon at the Second Presbyterian Church, Taylor avenue and Westminster place. Burial was private. Mr. Stickney, who was 55 years old, died at De Paul Hospital late Saturday night of complications following an illness of nine weeks. He resided with his brother, W. Arthur Stickney, of the St. Louis Country Club grounds. Mr. Stickney was born in St. Louis. After his graduation from old Smith Academy, he entered the cigar business with his father, the late William A. Stickney. After the cigar company was sold in 1912, he entered the brokerage business. Several years later he assisted in the organization of the Elder Manufacturing Co., a clothing concern. He had been connected recently with the stock and bond brokerage firm of A. G. Edwards & Sons. He is survived, in addition to the brother with whom he resided, by his mother, Mrs. William A. Stickney; a daughter, Miss Ann Stickney of New York; a sister, Mrs. O. J. Willis; another brother, A. Taylor Stickney. He and his wife, the former Eleanor Doster, now Mrs. Webster Tilton, were divorced in 1920.

Doctor, Son of Bill Arp, Dies.
JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 18.—Dr. Ralph Edward Smith, prominent Jacksonville physician and son of Bill Arp, writer, died at his home here today. His father's real name was E. H. Smith and he was a contemporary of Walt Whitman and James Whitcomb Riley.

Springfield Cigar Store Owner on Way to Fairmount Track When Car Overturns.

Lee Tipsoed, 54 years old, Springfield, Ill., cigar store proprietor, died at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Granite City last night of injuries suffered Thursday when his automobile turned over near Edwardsville.

Tipsoed was on the way to the Fairmount races.

Boy, 7, Knocked Down and Hurt by Auto in Front of Home.

Donald, 7-year-old son of Hugo Starr, 4657 Alexander avenue, suffered a fracture of the thigh and skull injuries when knocked down by an automobile in front of his home last night. The driver said he was Elmer Schwenke, 4253 Schiller place.

Swerving his automobile to avoid another car, Howard Zimmerman of 625 Military road crashed into a Public Service Co. bus at Michigan and Bates streets at 11:10 p. m. yesterday. Mrs. Anna Uhlrich, 73 4158 Bergen avenue, passenger on the bus, suffered a fracture of the right ankle. Six other passengers reported cuts and bruises. Miss Annetta Sulder, 2646 Chippewa street, passenger in Zimmerman's car, was cut and bruised.

John Murray, 15, 1036 Hickory street, and Tony George, 26, 2456 Arsenal street, suffered skull injuries when an automobile driven by Murray skidded on wet car tracks at Broadway and Pestalozzi street at 11:20 a. m. today and hit a southbound street car.

Emanuel Bowers, 25, 4473A Evans avenue, swerved his car to avoid another machine at Evans avenue and Whittier street at 11:15 a. m. yesterday. Bowers' car overturned. He suffered injuries of the skull and neck and a fracture of the right arm.

Michael J. Crehan, a concrete worker, 228 North Fifty-first street, East St. Louis, was struck last night by an automobile driven by Clarence Rogers Jr., 15 years old, of 856 North Fortieth street. Crehan is in serious condition at Christian Welfare Hospital suffering from a skull injury, fractures of the right arm and jaw and lacerations.

Rogers told police Crehan was standing between the car tracks on State street and stepped into the path of the automobile. Rogers is the son of the secretary of the Illinois State Trust Co.

Youth, Hurt When Truck Upset June 15, Dies.

Delbert Brown, 17 years old, 511 St. Joseph street, died at City Hospital last night as the result of a skull injury suffered June 15, when he was on a truck which overturned on Highway No. 66 near Sullivan, Mo.

Margie Paul, 1732 Chouteau avenue, was taken to City Hospital last night from Steelville, Mo., where his automobile skidded and overturned yesterday. He was suffering from a fractured left arm and a skull injury. Mrs. Effie Young of the Chouteau avenue address, who was with him, drove the automobile to St. Louis with him after the machine had been righted and put back on the road.

$32,250 LIFE SAVINGS STOLEN

Roomer Who Took Woman's Bonds and Cash Sought.

By the Associated Press.

CADILLAC, Mich., Sept. 25.—Police of Western Michigan today were searching for an unidentified robber who escaped yesterday with the $32,250 life savings of Mrs. Cora Johnson, 45 years old, proprietor of a candy, confectionery and rooming house. The safe in which they were stored also was gone. About $20,000 of the loot, Mrs.

DROWNED WHILE FISHING IN LAKE NEAR CARSONVILLE

Daniel Foley, 32, May Have Suffered Paralytic Stroke, Family Believes.

Daniel Foley, 32 years old, 4464A Natural Bridge avenue, was drowned early yesterday while fishing at Springdale Lake, near Carsonville, St. Louis County. His body was found floating in the lake by another fisherman who went to the lake shortly after Foley had gone out, at 5:10 a. m. A physician who examined the body said it had apparently been in the water only a brief time.

Members of Foley's family expressed a belief he might have suffered a paralytic stroke, as he had a slight stroke last week. He had been a visitor to the lake for years and was accustomed to fishing from a raft. Since last Friday he had been at his cottage near the lake.

He was engaged in the slate and tile roofing business. Surviving him are his widow, Mrs. Nellie Foley, and six daughters.

LEFT ONLY 8 DOGS, HUSBAND SEEKS SHARE OF $50,000

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Mrs. Florence Hunter died leaving $50,000 and eight dogs. Her husband got the dogs. Now he wants a husband's share of the estate. He said, "I found four of the dogs dead in the cellar, he said, and had them buried. In an animal cemetery where other dogs Mrs. Hunter had owned had been buried."

There is a law in New York which makes it impossible for a husband or wife to disinherit the other. Mrs. Hunter, however, signed her will one day before the law went into effect.

PROFIT IS FIRST CARE OF G.O.P., SAYS THOMAS

Socialist Declares Democrats Want Office—Both Parties Like Empty Bottles

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
MADISON, Wis., Sept. 26.—"President Hoover and the Republicans at least have come to a point where they offer immense doses to business," said Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, in an address here yesterday, which was broadcast by radio.

"Outside of Soviet Russia no man has ever put so much government in business as President Hoover. And all the while he talks rugged individualism and the American plan."

"But the purpose for which he puts government in business is always for the sake of the business man, in the hope that if the business man prospers, some crumbs may fall to the farmer and the worker."

"How unsatisfactory as this program, thinking first of the profit-maker, let these times attest."

The Republican and Democratic parties he called "empty glass bottles with different labels and both of them empty of any medicine for the sickness of our times."

Office-Seeking Motive.
"What the amiable Mr. Roosevelt and the Democrats want is hard to say, except that they want office. What else is it but office for office that united Democrats of the North, the South, the East and the West; the radical and the conservative; Barney Baruch and Burton K. Wheeler; Huey Long and Vincent Astor, and how many other incompatibles besides."

"For the most part Mr. Roosevelt deals in pious hopes."

"Farmers are to get tariff benefits without having overproduction stimulated, without any danger of dumping and without duly raising prices."

"Something is to be done for silver, but the gold standard must stand secure."

"Railroads are to be better regulated and it will be less expensive to get receiverships. Meanwhile, workers are to get the most the railroads can pay, which is exactly what railroad executives say, except that they add that they can only pay 20 per cent less than they are now paying."

"What leadership is that in an hour of crisis?"

"It is the degeneration of political action when we are asked to vote for parties with no more program," he continued, "when our attention is focused on one amendment—the eighteenth—and the purchase of beer, when millions among us can scarcely buy bread."

"We cannot afford forever to go on throwing away our votes by voting for what we don't want and getting it, by voting our fears instead of our hopes, by trying to pick the winner rather than picking the thing we desire to win."

Gives Socialistic Aims.
Thomas then turned to the Socialist program and platform.

"These natural resources which no man made," he said, "and these great aggregations of machinery now owned by absentee owners should be the possession of the great community of workers with brain and hand."

"It is the transfer of natural resources, the great means of production, the banking system, the public utilities, from private to public hands, which is the vital issue of our times. To that, of course, must be added the proper conduct of these industries."

PUERTO RICO NOW HAS 465,5 INHABITANTS TO SQUARE MILE
New Governor in First Report Says Huge Population Problem

By the Associated Press.
SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Sept. 26.—In his first annual report to the Secretary of War, Gov. James R. Beverley asserted today that Puerto Rico's greatest problem was its excessive population. This year there was a net increase of 20,4 per thousand, bringing the total population to 1,599,142, or 465.5 to the square mile.

"Conditions demonstrate that this population is too large for an area which is, and always must remain, largely agricultural," he wrote.

"He suggested three partial solutions—increased employment through new industries, emigration on a large scale or a decrease in the birthrate. The Government, he said, has encouraged industries. He suggested that other remedies must be attempted."

Baldy Dishes Call to the Colors.
ROME, Sept. 26.—The Foreign Office expressed indignation today over a report published in London saying Italy had called 1,200,000 men to the colors Oct. 1. The report, it said, was a distortion of a five-minute routine of checking the reserves effective since before the war, each man showing his papers at the local barracks.

RUTH MCCORMICK'S HUSBAND NOMINATED FOR U. S. SENATE

Albert R. Simms Chosen by Old Guard After Split in New Mexico G. O. P.

By the Associated Press.
ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Sept. 26.—A split Republican party in New Mexico has two complete State tickets in the field and one faction has selected a successor for United States Senator Bronson Cutting, who resigned as National Committeeman because of the break in party ranks. The successor, chosen by the "Old Guard" group, is Albert R. Simms, former Congressman and husband of Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick.

The regular Republican convention completed nominations for State offices late Saturday. The "progressive" wing, which belted the State meeting, elected an Executive Committee which also nominated a complete ticket.

The regulars chose for their gubernatorial candidate former Gov. R. C. Dillon; for Congress, Jose E. Armijo of San Miguel County. The bolters selected for Governor Prager Miller of Roswell, member of the State Tax Commission; for Congress, Maj. Herman Back of Belen.

Following the State convention, Carl P. Dunifon of Silver City resigned as State chairman and issued a statement criticizing the action of the State Central Committee, the Credentials Committee and the convention itself. He predicted that Senator Cutting, who left the regular convention after it had seated "Old Guard" delegations in three contesting counties, "will once again assume his rightful place as the leader of the Republican party of New Mexico."

Dunifon said the convention was organized "to throw Senator Cutting out of the party."

Happy Wife Keeps Youth Brushes Away Gray Hair
Now you can really look years younger. Simply brush away those unsightly streaks or patches of gray. It is so easy to do—and at home—with Brownatone. Over 20 years of success recommend this proved method. With an ordinary small brush you tint your hair back to its natural shades—whether blond, brown or black. Guaranteed hair color. Does not coat the surface. Actually penetrates the hair. Defies detection. No tell-tale, flat "dyed" look. Cannot effect waving of hair.

No need to guess. First cut a lock of hair from your head and apply a little of this famous tint. If Brownatone does not give your gray, streaked dull, or faded hair its natural color, youth and sheen, your money back. Only 50c.

WAITER FIGHTS OFF 4 IN HOLDUP ATTEMPT

Grabs Pistol of One, but is Forced to Release Hold When Struck on Head.

Ernest Henson, waiter in a restaurant at 2391 O'Fallon street, reported to police he fought off four men who attempted to rob him early yesterday.

Henson said he was waiting on a customer when the robbers entered through a side door. One drew an automatic pistol and ordered Henson to pull down the window blinds. Instead Henson struck the robber in the face and wrestled with him for possession of the weapon. The other robbers joined in the fight, one striking the waiter on the head with a sugar bowl. He relaxed his hold on the pistol and the robbers fled.

The waiter said they took only a bunch of keys. He was treated for a scalp wound. When police asked why he resisted, he said he had been a sailor in the British navy and was present when a cannon exploded aboard ship. "I wasn't afraid of any St. Louis automatic pistol after that," he said. Confectionery Owner Bound and Gagged, Robbed of $30.

Henry Wise, proprietor of a confectionery at 3150 Park avenue, was bound and gagged last night by two robbers who took $28 from the cash register. In leaving the place, the robbers turned on the night latch. A customer found the door locked and saw Wise struggling with his hands behind his back. He was called and opened a rear door to free the victim.

A safe at the Brandt Electric Co., 684 Pine street, was robbed of $225 last night by burglars who chiseled through a brick wall from an adjoining building to enter the store. After opening the door of the safe at the Central Drug Co., 1331 Market street, last night, burglars were unable to enter an inner compartment and fled without taking anything.

Mrs. Bertha Weaver, 1299 North Market street, was walking near fourteenth and Benton streets last night when a man knocked her purse from under her arm, picked it up and escaped in an automobile with a second man. The purse contained $2.

Ralph T. Doyel, Houston, Tex., asked police aid yesterday in the search for his automobile, which he said had been stolen by two girl hitchhikers in Cape Girardeau, Mo., last Wednesday. Doyel said he stopped the automobile to buy cigarettes and that the girls, who had been riding with him, drove away in it. He said they told him they were going to Cincinnati, O.

The caretaker at the Hempstead School, Hamilton boulevard and Minerva avenue, reported someone had broken in during the week-end and had ransacked eight rooms and the principal's office. The lost taken was not determined.

RUSSIA HONORS MAXIM GORKY: CELEBRATIONS EVERYWHERE

40th Anniversary of Literary Activity Commemorated; Insults Named for Him Censored.

MOSCOW, Sept. 25.—The City of Nizhni Novgorod, chief center of navigation on the Volga River and famous in medieval Russian history, has been renamed "Maxim Gorky" for "Soviet Russia's foremost man of letters" who was born there. The fortieth anniversary of Gorky's literary activity was celebrated yesterday.

His pen name also is to be perpetuated in the City of Moscow, replacing Tverskaya as the name of the main street. (His real name is Aleksei Peshkov.)

Joseph Stalin, leader of the Communist party; Michael Allin, president of the Soviet Union, and Vyacheslav Molotov, president of the Council of Commissars, sat on the stage in the Moscow Opera House yesterday while honors were heaped on Gorky. The 54-year-old writer, who was seated beside Stalin, was awarded the Order of Lenin.

Kalinin and others extolled Gorky's life and work "in behalf of the toiling masses."

Theaters throughout the country, including movie houses, showed productions based on his works and special editions of his editorial writings were issued.

The establishment of the Soviet Union's highest literary institute, named the Gorky Institute, was announced, and Gorky scholarships were opened in various institutions of higher learning.

HITS SECURITIES 'BLUEBEARDS'

Speaker Says They Must Move in Year Than Holding Men.

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 25.—The National Association of Real Estate Commissioners was told today that "Bluebeards" in the securities field rob the public of millions each year than all the petty thieves, bandits and bank robbers combined.

The statement was made by E. R. Rick, Little Rock, Ark., president of the association, at the opening of its annual meeting here today. His group is composed of securities commissioners from throughout the United States, organized to combat what he called "wildcat" securities. "The racket" in bond-alike securities in New York alone, he said, "according to the State Crime Commission, amounts to $400,000,000 annually. The reward of racketeering in the United States, according to the crime commission, is from twelve to fifteen billion dollars a year. That would pay the expense of running all the departments of the national Government, including post, telegraph, amortization of the national debt, and leave billions to spare."

HOOVER COMMENTS POSTAL SERVICE

President Lays Corner Stone of New Department Building in Washington.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Wielding the same trowel employed by George Washington in laying the corner stone of the Capitol Building 139 years ago, President Hoover today formally dedicated the corner stone of the new Federal Postoffice Building here.

In an address at the ceremony, the President praised the growth and accomplishments of the postal service as "a factor second to no other in the upbuilding and development of modern America."

The chief executive said the Postoffice Department had grown from 75 offices and 118 employees under President Washington to 45,533 offices and more than 280,000 employees at the present time.

The President's address followed: "In September, 1793, President Washington laid the corner stone of the Capitol. We meet today in the course of a nation-wide commemoration of the 139th anniversary of Washington's birth to see, with the same trowel which he used 139 years ago, the corner stone of a new building for the administration of the postal service, which had its origin during Washington's administration."

"Washington was responsible for the original plan of this city. It was a plan which permitted its orderly and beautiful expansion. This building is set into that plan and is well fitted to further beautify the city."

"This ceremony today has an especial significance to the people of the city of New York, for it was there that the Government of the United States began its functions under the Constitution, and there was first organized the general postoffice, as it was then called. I extend greetings to those who are assembled in this city today to celebrate these beginnings of our Government and to do honor to Washington's memory."

"In those beginning days the country was sparsely settled; travel was difficult; postoffices were widely separated; and the postal service was primitive, slow and costly. But it was the sole means of communication among the states, and the new Government acted vigorously to increase its efficiency. By the time of the removal of the Government to the District of Columbia in the year 1800, the United States Postoffice was firmly established."

"Postal facilities were looked upon by our early statesmen not merely as an end in themselves, but as a powerful instrumentality for national unity and national growth. In the first years of the republic, the mails followed the pioneers into our inland territory, and as the great tide of migration set toward the west, it was the rapidly multiplying post routes and the dependable communication which they afforded with the East that made possible the eventual extension of our frontiers to the Pacific."

"Since those early days, the postal service has been a factor second to no other in the upbuilding and development of modern America. It has constantly enlarged and broadened its facilities and has steadily grown in usefulness. Today it threads through the daily social and business life of all our people, and extends its benefits to every city, hamlet and fireside in the land. It furnishes quick communication for business and industry, transports the products of the farm to the city dweller, brings the goods of the manufacturer and the merchant to the farmer's gate, delivers newspapers, magazines and books into the remotest homes, provides a safe means of transmitting money and valuables, carries messages of gladness and of sorrow between families and friends, and makes neighbors of our most widely separated communities."

"The Postoffice establishment is not a machine; it is a living force of thousands of skillful and devoted men and women. Two hundred and fifty thousand persons are regularly and continuously engaged in handling the United States mails, and 60,000 others are given part-time or contract employment by the Postoffice Department. The esteem and affection in which the postal service is held by all our citizens is a deserved tribute to the unflinching fidelity of these efficient and honorable public servants."

"Since the establishment of the Postoffice Department under President Washington, the number of Postoffices has increased from 75 to 45,533; the number of postal employees from 118 to more than a quarter of a million; the mileage of post routes from 1904 to more than a million and a half; and the postal revenues from $25,000 to $700,000,000 a year. The service must constantly be enlarged and extended to satisfy the increasing demands which are made upon it. The postal establishment is an instrumentality which exists to serve all the people and which in its proper sphere should require little or no support from the public treasury."

"Thirty-two years ago the Postoffice Department moved its offices into the building which it at present occupies. In these 32 years, the population of the country has increased by 60 per cent, but the postal business has increased sevenfold. "And so today we lay the corner stone of the new building which is to house the executive offices of this enlarged and growing institution for the next generation. In the future, as in the past, the enlargement of its services will bring increased abundance to the commercial, the social and the spiritual life of all our citizens."

Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—Determined to win one of the first two games of the first two games of the Chicago Cubs, National League club, departed at noon today for New York to meet the Yankees in the world series opening game Wednesday. The Cubs showed every sign of being ready for action. Mark Koenig, who will start at shortstop, and although he dropped a fly on a possible double play, gave a highly satisfactory contribution to the team's three hits in as many at bats. The players, in a jubilant mood, cheered out of the Pennsylvania stadium to the cheers of a thousand fans. The game was ended by a drizzling rain fall.

Players Show Confidence.
There were 74 in the party, including 27 team members, coaches, trainers. Twelve wives of the players went along to cheer their men. The Cub players were wearing and beaming, confident they would return victorious from the first game of the American League championship.

Warley Grimm, Cub manager, said he was going to New York to "shoot the works." His job is to take at least one of the two games in New York. Grimm said, "If we can take one of the games when we come to Wrigley Field, we will open the series and the well three innings he had yesterday he seems to be in shape. Warneke will start second game—that is, if I do have to use him in the first." William L. Vecch, president of the club, who daringly ousted Rogers Hornsby as manager of the club last August, was in the party. He will depart for New York in the day.

Starnett and Koenig Ready.
The Cubs are due to arrive in New York at 10 o'clock tomorrow. Their headquarters will be the Commodore Hotel. Tomorrow afternoon Manager Grimm will have his players to the Yankee stadium for their first drill on the unfamiliar field.

The club started away to defeat the national League's power of the world championship, for the Chicago games of series went into the mail today. It has not been as brisk as it was about $1,200,000 was used to unsuccessful applicants. It was still good enough to attract capacity crowds of around 40,000.

Construction of temporary stands over Sheffield and Waverly avenues, adjacent to Wrigley, was just about completed to making possible an additional 10,000 seats which will go on sale for games at $1.10 each.

McCarthy's Yankees will be in baseball's big show, starting Wednesday, but fans and players, gathering here for the championship struggle, generally agree that the Cubs have a better chance of winning, but pitchers whose jug-handle and screw balls are likely to be a crimp in the slugging of the powerful American League champions.

Bush Is "Ace."
Ray Bush, the swarthy son of the Chicago staff, with the best of stopping the Yankees, it he fails in the first game, will swing sharply toward the nation of a clean sweep, or at least a 4-0 victory.

PITCHING WILL BE DECIDING FACTOR IN 1932 WORLD SERIES

BUSH, AS ACE OF CHICAGO STAFF, LIKELY TO GIVE YANKS TROUBLE

least a quick victory for the American League forces.

Bush has been a good pitcher for several years, with speed, good curves and a splendid fighting spirit. However, this season he developed what the trade calls a "slider" ball, which has made him outstanding in the league, one of the most difficult pitchers to hit.

A screw ball is the opposite of the ordinary curve. The pitcher, throwing a screw ball, holds the ball usually with his first and second fingers and as the ball leaves his hand it slips between the index finger and the thumb. In the case of the screw ball, the pitcher holds the ball the same way, but snaps his wrist in the opposite direction and the ball rolls off the first two fingers on the left hand, making it curve in the opposite direction from the ordinary curve.

Bush, having an excellent curve and also a screw ball that breaks sharply, keeps the batters in no little confusion. He delivers the curve and the screw ball with the same motion, which makes it very disconcerting for the batters.

If Bush wins the first game, and it is taken for granted that Manager Grimm will go through with his announced intention of starting him in the opening game, the Cubs will have to be the underdogs, for they will have Lon Warneke, Charley Root, Pat Malone and Burleigh Grimes to oppose Bush on the hill and will then be conceded an advantage over the Yankees in the pitching department.

Figures on Warneke. Warneke, if you believe in figures, stands out as the best pitcher in the series. In winning 12 games for the National League champions while losing only six, he held his own to an average of only 2.1 runs a game. In contrast, Bush yielded 4.14 runs and Ruffing, who is likely to hurt the first contest for the Yankees, permitted 3.42 runs a game, while winning 12 and losing six.

Records, of course, mean nothing in a world series. Tommy Thorne out-batted Ruth and all the Cardinals and Yankee sluggers in the world series of 1925 and, of course, everybody remembers how Pepper Martin kicked over the traces last October.

In fact, all you have to do to prove the fallacy of trying to "dope" a world series is to look back at the struggles of past years. The Yankees were stronger than the Cardinals in 1926, but Bob Meusel went over to center field for a fly, because his arm was stronger than Earl Combs' and he wanted to cut off a runner at the plate. Meusel dropped the fly and the Cardinals won the game and the series.

The Pirates looked like a better team in 1927 than the Yankees, but the American Leaguers overcame a lead in the first game, broke the Pirates' spirit and won the series.

The Cardinals were in this condition in 1928, while the Yankees looked like a hospital ball club. But, you remember, the Yanks won four straight that year.

In 1930 things went according to form. The Athletics looked stronger than the Cardinals and won four out of six games. But everybody expected Grove and Earnshaw to paralyze the Cardinals batters last year and the National League victory might easily be classed as an upset.

For a time, it seemed that popular sentiment would be with the Cubs, just as it was with the Cardinals in 1928. Charley Grimm always has been popular and the underdog usually captures the public fancy.

It's different now, however, and if you get the average fan or the baseball man in a corner, he'll talk turkey he'll tell you he's pulling for the Yankees.

The Hornsby Angle. "No team could have any luck after doing what the Cubs did," a major league manager told the writer yesterday. "I mean what they did to Hornsby. Rogers made a lot of mistakes; no question about that. But he managed that team through the toughest part of the season. He assembled it and picked his players and kept the club in first or second place all the way. When the Cubs failed to do the Hornsby in on a share of the world series money they did one of the most selfish things ever pulled in the game. It casts a reflection on every ball player. I ought to be pulling for my league, but I won't in this series. I hope the Yankees win four straight."

Were it not for business conditions, the 1932 series might be expected to see new attendance and receipts records established. The Yankee Stadium can accommodate a crowd of 60,000 and Wrigley Field at Chicago has a capacity of 52,000. However, with money as scarce as it is, the marks established by the Yankees and Cardinals in 1926 probably will not be disturbed.

Sport Salad

Slight of Hand Ball.

THE "popper" act put on by the House of David the other night was clever and reminds us of the way Bobby Byrne, "Lefty" Lelfield, "Dots" Miller and Max Carey used to put it on when they were with the Pirates.

It was originated, as far as we know, by the Pirates' Popper Quartet and was a practical demonstration of the prestidigitator's old slogan that "the quickness of the hand deceives the eye."

THE old "popper" act was a sure-fire thriller. Lelfield to Carey to Byrne to Miller.

Then all of a sudden the action would vary. To Miller to Lelfield to Byrne to Max Carey.

Or Lelfield to Miller to Carey to Bobby. As feeling the fans was their principal hobby.

In short, a hundred-and-one combinations. They added a lot to the joy of the Nations.

Attention Please! I see where the annual fall series between the Cubs and White Sox has been called off to give the Cubs a chance to catch a train for New York and give the Yanks in the World Series.

That makes it tough on the White Sox, who have been accustomed to looking forward to this annual little mess of chicken feed.

As the distribution of the largest is confined to first division, the Sox feel several paragraphs outside the divvy, and there is no money in the runner-up trophy for the cellar championship.

And to the Cards, whose sensitive ears have been so finely attuned to the jingle of world series cash in paying quantities, the series stillness is uncanny.

Not Bad. However, when the icy blasts of January begin to blow across the wild north they can wear their last winter's rings, which are practically as good as new, and warm the cookies of their hearts with the thought that next year is another year and happy days will come again.

It begins to look as though Comrade Bottomley will join out with the Reds in Cincinnati next year. Sunny Jim, a victim of nostalgia, is pining to rejoin his old teammates over the Rhine in the capacity of manager.

We shall miss him, of course, but in Jimmie De La Haye the Cardinals have a vast-pocket edition of Sunny Jim, even to the walk, stance and tilt of his cap.

"Diszy" Dean last Thursday, when pitching against the House of David, entered into the spirit of the occasion by shooting the old pill across the plate with whippers on it. Night and day in every way "Diszy" gets better and better.

"Diszy" is a glutton for work. He'll pitch every day, shoot the bull between innings and then go to a rodeo at night and give old Taurus the toss.

When "Diszy" is slated for a tough game on Sunday he warms up by pitching a nine-inning game on Saturday. But he'd better watch his step or he'll lose his card in the Iron Workers' Union.

The Redbirds and several other second division teams are experiencing the biggest financial flop in years. But aren't we all?

Jim Bottomley has the permission of the management to negotiate with Cincinnati. In view of Sunny Jim's dislocated thumb, it seems he has been just too dumb to turn thumbs down on the proposition.

For a time, it seemed that popular sentiment would be with the Cubs, just as it was with the Cardinals in 1928. Charley Grimm always has been popular and the underdog usually captures the public fancy.

It's different now, however, and if you get the average fan or the baseball man in a corner, he'll talk turkey he'll tell you he's pulling for the Yankees.

Indoor Soccer Gets Real Test In Matches at Arena Tonight; Stix Favored to Capture Cup

Indoor soccer gets a test tonight when the four clubs of the St. Louis (Professional) Soccer League meet in a three-game series at The Arena on Oakland avenue. Never before has the indoor game been presented under such favorable conditions and there is every reason to believe that the spectacle will prove attractive.

A dozen years or more ago an attempt was made to introduce indoor soccer at the Winter Garden on De Balive avenue, but there were so many restrictions regarding floor area and footing that the experiment proved unsuccessful. In that century the floor was of hardwood and the players used basketball shoes. Three years ago a series of games was played at the Arena and the public response was encouraging. Even at that time the project was experimental. For instance, a full team of 11 men was used, and found impracticable. Later, the number was reduced to seven-and-a-half. These were pre-season games and the schedule was not carried forward into the winter months, so there is no telling how popular the game might have become.

Seven Men on Each Side. Tonight the errors of previous experiments will be avoided. The teams will be of seven men each; the floor will be of real, solid earth, consisting of a six-inch bed of soil, packed hard by heavy rollers and swept clean of foreign particles, thus assuring a true surface and natural action for the ball. The players will use the regulation football shoe and the extent of the playing surface is so great that full strength kicks will be in order.

To make the task of the forwards relatively the same as in the outdoor game, the goals have been increased to 20 feet, the regulation width being 14 feet. Two major changes have been made in the rules: The ball will remain in play even when it strikes the side barrier and the corner kick will be converted into a throw-in. Instead of the customary kick from the flag. In all other respects the game will be the same as the outdoor game.

Those three Stix players who did so much to defeat St. Louis in the National Cup final at Sportsman's Park last spring, Alec McKeay, Bill Watson and Billy McPherson, will be one of the chief attractions for the evening. They will appear in the Stix team lineup for their final game at the arena.

All four professional clubs have been training and practicing for the past four weeks in preparation for the opening of the season next Sunday. The players, therefore, are in good physical condition and should be able to go the full time at top speed.

The general admission charge will be 40 cents and there will be box seats at 75 cents including parking tickets. Tickets are at Lewis and Campbell, Leacock and Spalding.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Hendricks, 1924-25, and Dan Howley, 1920-21.

Moran, who had the longest lease on the job, won a pennant in 1919 and that, of course, explains his retention.

Bottomley is making a serious bid for the place. This morning he refused to comment on his application; but even if satisfied Cincinnati, his release by the Cardinals would not be for anything of which the Cincinnati club is reported to have little hard cash.

Bottomley is still counted the Cardinals' first string first baseman and naturally would not be traded except for a considerable return.

In any case, if the Reds get Bottomley, the Reds more than ever will resemble a club of transplanted Cardinals. That, at least, would make Bottomley feel at home.

We'll Take the Straight Flush. The old question has bobbed up again: "In a game of poker in which the joker is used, which hand wins: Four aces and the joker, or a king high straight flush?"

Tom Kearney volunteers this answer: "Give me the straight flush. Under ordinary rules governing poker, but strictly flush beats any four of a kind, including four aces."

"There is no such hand as FIVE aces possible in the game of poker and it is generally accepted that the joker is usable only to complete the normal hand possible in poker. It fills in a straight or a flush and it makes the fourth ace, if its holder had three other aces in his hand. But it is generally accepted that it cannot be used to make a regular poker hand that does not exist in regular poker."

"In some places where poker is played they put notices explaining that 'house rules' will govern. In such instances either a king high straight flush or four aces, or in default of that, the owner of the game specifies his rules which must be abided by, in case of dispute."

"In 'wild' games it has been customary to recognize 'five of a kind' and in many cases five of a kind beats a straight flush, as is considered a higher hand than any straight flush except the royal. House rules usually prevail in such games."

An Overstuffed Season. IT looks like a big year for St. Louis football—perhaps too big. Instead of a couple of half-baked university eleven, football fans will be entertained by two first-class collegiate teams and two professional outfits, where formerly none flourished.

We are confronted with the prospect for example, of St. Louis University's powerful unit in action on Friday nights, Washington University's team playing on Saturday afternoon or night, a Sunday afternoon professional team, and a Monday night contest by flood lights with the Battery A Gunners doing their stuff at Sportsman's Park.

That isn't all. On Sunday afternoons there will be competition from professional soccer eleven and Municipal soccer eleven and in the evening, if attendance these may prove considerable factors, especially in view of the interesting new soccer eleven being built by the Stix.

We doubt if there is sufficient public interest to support the college type of football on four successive days or nights. It is just one more thing to add as though the professional eleven has picked on the worst possible year to start a war for local supremacy.

The old proverb fits: "Too much of one thing is good for nothing."

MERTZ BROTHERS WIN IN SECOND ROUND OF ST. CLAIR GOLF MEET

Four matches were completed yesterday afternoon in the championship class of the St. Clair County golf tournament. The remaining second round matches in all divisions will be completed this week.

In the matches yesterday, William Mertz defeated Ed Coffey, 4 and 3; Dr. Hogan defeated W. Wagnell, 2 and 1; Harvey Mertz defeated L. J. J. and 3; and Harry Pilkington defeated N. Quail, 1 up.

MISSOURI PACIFIC WINS TENNIS TROPHY

Tennis players of the Missouri Pacific Railroad won the first tie on the St. Louis Railroad Trophy in the second annual tournament at Wabash Club yesterday in competition with the Wabash and the Cotton Belt.

The Missouri Pacific won seven matches and lost three, the Cotton Belt won five and lost five, while the Wabash won three and lost seven. Reinhold and Myrova, with two victories each, starred for the winners.

WEINSTOCK WINS WAY INTO FINAL OF PARK TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Defeating Sid Smith, 6-2, 2-6, 6-1, Herb Weinstock won his way into the finals of the Forest Park Tennis Club's tourney and next Tuesday will meet the winner of the St. Louis Railroad Trophy in the final match for the title.

Weinstock already has two victories on the title trophy and needs but one more for permanent possession.

Dean Scores His 18th Victory, Frisch Hits Homer to End Season

By James M. Gould.

A year ago St. Louis was preparing to play host to world series crowds. The names of the Cardinals were on the lips of the citizenry; the Redbird players were cheered on every appearance; flags flew and parades were held. Gaby Street was the Cardinal player, the picture is a bit different. Unattended, the Cardinal players are on their way to their homes; there are no parades and no flying flags. Gaby Street has no miracles to his credit.

A year ago the Cardinals were pennant winners with 101 victories and 45 defeats for a percentage of .686. This year they have finished with the Giants for sixth and seventh places, credited with 72 victories and 45 defeats for a percentage of .468—a net loss of 29 full games and 188 percentage points since 1921. It is one of the ironies of the season that the Cardinals and Giants, the two teams chosen almost unanimously to fight it out for the 1922 pennant, should finish the campaign tied for two lowly places in the second division.

The Cardinals achieved a tie with the Giants yesterday by dividing a doubleheader with the second-place Pirates. Losing the first game, while the Giants were defeating the Phils, they temporarily were all alone in the No. 7 spot but, defeating the Pirates in the final game of the year while the Phils were taking one from Bill Terry's men, the Cardinals managed to tie.

Dean Wins Eighteenth Victory. There was no fooling or horseplay about yesterday's games. The Pirates, with Harris outpitching Stutz and Stout, won the first one, 7 to 1 but, in the second, though the Pittsburghers hit Dean harder than the Cards hit Spencer, the first-divisioners were not lucky in bunching their hits while the Cards were and won, 7-4, Dean achieving his eighteenth victory for the year against 15 defeats. The victory put the alleged "Diszy One" at the head of the Redbird hurriers.

Perhaps the players were glad to end the season. At any rate, the first game was played in one hour.

Dean Struck Out 191 Batters to Pace Hurriers in Majors

IN his first full year in the majors, Jerome Herman "Diszy" Dean of the Cardinals, captured the season's strikeout honors from some of the most seasoned performers in big league baseball.

By fanning two Pittsburgh batters in the last game of the season, Dean brought his strikeout total to 191 for the year. Charley Ruffing of the New York Yankees was second in the majors with 180 and Lefty Grove of the Philadelphia Athletics was the third contender for the place, finishing with 185 strikeouts.

Dean won 13 games for the Cardinals and lost 15.

Home Run Frisch's Farewell. Frank Frisch said a rather spectacular goodbye. He relieved Charley Wilson late in the second game, came to bat once and that time bounced a homer off the roof of the pavilion. Frank and Jake Flowers will drive East.

SON OF SLAIN MAN HANGS SELF; WAS TO BE QUESTIONED

Walter Welch Leaves Note to 'Public' Declaring Innocence 'Of Crime of Which I am Accused.'

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MARSHALL, Ill., Sept. 25.—Prosecuting Attorney Victor Miller said yesterday that a preliminary hearing would be held today for Mrs. Della Finner and her two sons, Charles and John Finner, arrested several days ago on charges charging the murder of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Welch who were shot to death the night of Dec. 31, 1930, on their farm home five miles northeast of here.

Walter Welch, 40-year-old farmer and son of the murdered man, hanged himself in his garage on a farm near here Saturday.

Leaves Note "to Public." A note that Welch left, addressed to the "public," contained the statement: "I am innocent of the crime of which I am accused. I have told nothing but the truth. But it seems I can't make them understand." The note also expressed the hope the "actual slayers" would be found.

Miller said that while the suicide had not changed the complexion of the case, new information came to his office that he expected soon to establish either the innocence of the three held or to involve them further in the killings.

Al Stepp, Paris policeman, who has been investigating the murder, visited the Welch farm Friday, but Welch was in town on business. Step left word for Welch to come to Paris Saturday, saying he thought Welch could help him with certain details of the case.

Mrs. Welch said her husband appeared in good spirits when she delivered the message to him Friday night. Late Saturday he walked to his garage with a 2-year-old son and hanged himself. The little boy later said he thought "papa was playing." The body was found by another son, Joe, 10.

SPECIAL WORKERS TO CARE FOR MOTHERLESS FAMILIES

Children's Aid Society to Look After Those Reported by Citizens' Committee.

Motherless families which have come to the attention of the Citizens' Committee on Relief and Employment will be turned over to the Children's Aid Society for specialized care, under a new arrangement announced today.

The total number is expected to be about 100. The Children's Aid Society will care for them in addition to its regular work and will be reimbursed by the Citizens' Committee.

Two special workers will supervise relief and service given such families. Efforts to keep the families intact will be made, according to Herschel Ait, general secretary of the Children's Aid Society, who pointed out that that method of care is more economical, in addition to have other advantages. In cases where children might become delinquent if left with their fathers, other arrangements will be made.

NEW YORK MILK STRIKE OFF

Farmers Promised Price Rise by Metropolitan Dealers.

ADAMS CENTER, N. Y., Sept. 25.—Assured that the United Milk Products Co. will do everything within its ability to maintain milk prices among its distributors in New York City, dairy farmers of Adams Center and Pierrepont Manor were going ahead today with delivery of milk they had threatened to withhold from the Metropolitan market.

R. B. McConnell, chairman of the Milk Producers' Committee, after a conference yesterday with W. A. Bartache, vice president of the company, said Bartache also promised that there would be an advance in price later. Farmers now are paid 95 cents per 100 pounds of milk. McConnell contends it costs more than $1 to produce the milk.

RAID ON MANCHURIAN TOWN

By the Associated Press.

TSUTSISHIR, Manchuria, Sept. 25.—The Rengo (Japanese) News Agency correspondent here reports that 100 Chinese irregulars raided a village near Angangchi on the Chinese Eastern Railway south of Tsutshir.

The Japanese contingent from Tsutshir was sent to the scene and quickly dispersed the raiders, inflicting heavy losses. Tsutshir was untroubled by the action and under control of nearly a brigade of Japanese troops.

Italy's Exchange Restoration.

ROME, Sept. 25.—The Government announced today the inauguration of "defensive" measures against German exchange restrictions in the form of a clearing house to assemble Italian money and credits in Germany and utilize them to pay Italian bills for German exports. In this way Italians will get some of their frozen deposits out of Germany. The Government also has retaliated for increased French customs by ordering similar increases on French exports.

FARMER HELD FOR SHOOTING WIFE AND ANOTHER WOMAN

Wounded in Back During Quarrel.

Mrs. Blanche Adolph, 38 years old, is at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Belleville, suffering from a bullet wound in the back, which she said was inflicted by her husband last night in a dispute climaxing five years of quarrels.

The husband, Charles H. Adolph, a farmer residing near Millstadt, Ill., is in jail at Belleville. He admitted the shooting, according to St. Clair County authorities.

A neighbor of the Adolphs, Mrs. Leo Ferbeck, is also in St. Elizabeth's Hospital with a superficial bullet wound of the forehead. She was wounded by one of two shots fired by Adolph at a clubhouse about six miles southwest of Belleville, where Mrs. Adolph had gone after the dispute.

Hurt Because Autos Didn't Collide. By the Associated Press. DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 25.—Two ramshackle automobiles that have been run into each other as an attraction of a speedway program here yesterday. Just before the expected crash the drivers jumped, but the cars missed each other and one ran through a fence.

Mrs. Rosemary Allen and Wayne Lewis Allen, 20 months old, and Bob Sledge, race driver, were injured. Three Rob Golfers of $1500. NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Three robbers entered the Corona Park golf clubhouse with pistols last night, took $1500 from the safe and club members, and were about to depart when a victim asked the holdup men to leave carfare. "Sorry," said the robbers' leader, who tossed a handful of change on the floor.

CURTIS SECONDS DRY REMARK

Indirectly Affirms Own Declaration Against Repeal.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 25.—Vice-President Curtis wound up his campaign in Kentucky with an address Saturday night, devoted largely to discussion of relief measures, immigration, foreign debts and the tariff.

He praised statements made by Maurice H. Thatcher, Republican Senatorial nominee, on the same program. Thatcher said, "I am against the return of the saloon any place at any time." Curtis, in concluding his address, said, "I listened with pride to what Mr. Thatcher had to say on the Constitution of the United States. I am proud of the fact he is for rigid enforcement of all our laws. I am proud of the fact that he is against the return of the saloon to this country."

More Than 100 Organizations to Be Represented.

Delegates representing more than 100 Jewish organizations will participate in an extraordinary United Jewish conference that has been summoned for next Sunday. Among the leaders signing the call are Aaron Rauh, president of the Jewish Federation; Leo Fuller, chairman of the forthcoming Jewish Federation campaign, and the following committee: Prof. Gustave Klausner, chairman; F. S. Bach, Max G. Baron, Irwin Bettman, Mark Edison, Leon Gellman, Julius Glaser, I. E. Goldstein, Louis Goodman, Nathan Harris, Samuel Kransberg, I. Mathes, Morton J.

Strass, Sydney Shoenberg, Emil Strauss, Aaron Waldheim, Maurice Weil, Dr. Alex. E. Wolf, Harry Yawits and Mendel N. Fisher, secretary.

The fate of the constituent organizations of the Jewish Federation, together with a program of constructive relief work, will be discussed at the conference, which will be held at the Hotel Chase.

The committee sponsoring the conference made it clear that while no funds will be solicited at this meeting, at the same time every Jewish organization has been asked to participate in the conference in order that the situation that exists may be made known to everyone interested in the Jewish Federation work.

Nebraskan Will Speak Under the Auspices of New Progressive League Which He Heads.

COAST-TO-COAST
TOUR BEGINS OCT. 15

Organization Declares Hoover Has Proved Himself Incapable of Effective Leadership.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—An announcement was made here today of the formation of the "National Progressive League," under the leadership of Senator George W. Norris, Independent Republican, of Nebraska, to support the candidacy of Franklin D. Roosevelt and "the progressive principles for which he stands."

The league was described by Frederick C. Howes, its secretary, as a nonpartisan organization composed of progressives of both the major parties, as well as independents with no party allegiance. Senator Norris, it was announced, would speak under the auspices of the league in a coast-to-coast tour beginning Oct. 15. Other speakers will include Mayor Frank Murphy of Detroit, Amos Pinchot and former Secretary of State Bainbridge Haly. Headquarters of the league have been opened in New York and Washington.

The league's National Committee, of which Senator Norris is chairman and Senator Edward P. Costigan of Colorado is vice chairman, has among its present members the following: Henry A. Wallace of Iowa, publisher of Wallace's Farmer; William Draper Lewis of Pennsylvania, director of the American Law Institute; Frank Murphy, Mayor of Detroit; Bainbridge Haly, of New York; H. C. Hansbrough of North Dakota, former United States Senator; Felix Frankfurter, Harvard professor of law; John G. Maher of Nebraska, president of the Old Line Insurance Co.; Donald B. Rieberg of Illinois, general counsel, Railway Executives' Association; James M. Thomson, publisher New Orleans Item and Tribune; Ray Stannard Baker of Massachusetts, official biographer of Woodrow Wilson; Francis J. Heney, Judge of Superior Court of California; Amos Pinchot of New York; W. R. Donald of South Dakota; Roscoe Fitch of the District of Columbia; W. N. Polakov of New York; H. S. Julian of Missouri and H. C. Schober of South Dakota.

Purposes and Plans.
The purposes and plans of the league are set forth in the following statement from its Washington office:

"In this critical election, independent voters face a clear issue. They must choose whether the nation shall have four years more of executive autocracy and indifference to human distress or four years of constructive administration inspired by human sympathy."

Today 10,000,000 willing workers are unemployed; 3,000,000,000 farmers, deprived of their homes and foreign markets, are bankrupt and more than 100,000 banks and business houses have failed.

"In such a crisis the highest patriotism demands that voters ignore party labels in the choice of their national leader."

For four years, Herbert Hoover has been chief executive of the United States. For four years Franklin D. Roosevelt has been chief executive of a great State. They have had similar opportunities for public service and similar tests of their capacity for statesmanship. Upon their public records in these high offices the candidates for the presidency should be judged."

Throughout his administration

BROOKINGS INSTITUTE VIEW

Conclusion Covers Study Not Only of Adverse U. S. Tariffs But Hindering Factors Even Under More Normal Trade Policy.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—The Brookings Institution, a research organization founded at Washington by Robert S. Brookings of St. Louis, published today a comprehensive study of the international debt problem, with the conclusion that the continued collection of the war debts and reparations would be "economically detrimental, rather than beneficial," to the United States and the other creditor countries, and that the complete obliteration of these obligations would promote, rather than retard, world economic recovery.

Dr. Harold G. Mullin, president of the institution, and Dr. Leo Pasvolaky, a member of its staff, are the authors of the volume. It brings together, as the preface points out, the results of 10 years' investigation in the field of international debts by the Institute of Economics, now merged in the Brookings Institution.

The book ends with the following statement of opinion: "The basic economic implications of the war debt problem are clear. The attempts to collect obligations, resulting not from productive economic developments but from the destructive processes of the war, have only served to impede the restoration of international economic equilibrium and world prosperity. While the obliteration of the war debts would not solve all the manifold difficulties under which the world is laboring, economic analysis leads unmistakably to the conclusion that the restoration and maintenance of world prosperity will be rendered much easier if the disorganizing effects of the war debt payments are eliminated once and for all."

Can Only Pay With Goods.

The book is a mine of factual material on the origin of the war debts, the various post-war debt settlements, and the tortuous negotiations over German reparations. A valuable feature is the chapter on "the economics of international debt payments," explaining in simple terms the proposition that the debtor countries, in the last analysis, can only pay their creditors with goods and services—chiefly goods. It is shown that American tariff policy, by restricting imports, works at cross purposes with the collection of the debts.

When the debt settlements were made, it is pointed out, there was a popular assumption that the debtor countries needed merely to raise the required sums from their people and transfer the money abroad.

"The transfer of money out of a country, however," the authors continue, "has very limited possibilities. In the first place, the total gold supply of any country is so small that, if used in the payment of international debts, such as those existing at the end of the World War, it would be very quickly exhausted. For example, the German gold supply in 1921 was sufficient to meet the reparations obligations for only about six months."

"The paper currency of a country can be used only to a very limited extent in making payments abroad. This is because the value of the currency—unless the supply is very rigidly limited—depends upon its convertibility into gold. If paper currency were sent abroad in any considerable quantities, it would lose its value unless it could be sent back for conversion into gold—and if this occurs it is gold, rather than paper, that becomes the real means of payment."

The only remaining possibility is to pay in the money of other countries, or in what is known as foreign exchange. In the case of the debts owed to France, for example, the French Government would accept either its own currency, or bills of exchange entitling it to dollars or any other currency convertible into gold. Such bills could then be utilized by the governments receiving them for making their own foreign debt payments or for meeting any other foreign obligations. They would thus be, to all intents and purposes, the equivalent of gold.

Sale of Goods or Services.
"The foreign currency can be earned only by the sale of goods or the rendering of services to foreigners—services including such things as the carrying of goods of foreigners, the entertainment of tourists, and the insurance of foreign goods. No other means are available, although the funds required may for a time be borrowed."

"But it is not sufficient that the debtor country should export, say, 2,000,000,000 marks' worth of goods annually in order to be able to pay debts abroad to the extent of 2,000,000,000 marks. This is because some portion of the country's exports must always be utilized to pay for imports."

Thus we arrive at the proposition that the total volume of exports cannot be used for the purpose of earning foreign money, which which to meet foreign debts, but that only the proceeds from the excess of exports over imports are available. That is to say, the payment for the indispensably necessary imports must be regarded as a first charge against the proceeds of a nation's exports; and only what is left, can, year in and year out, be utilized in liquidating international indebtedness.

"It should be noted also that, in the main, the goods exported must be the result of current production. Temporary payments may be made by utilizing existing accumulations of movable property such as railway rolling stock, ships, livestock and supplies. . . . But the amount of available movable property is relatively limited by the foreign case of the gold supply, its utilization in making debt payments is likely to lessen the volume of payments that can be made in the future, because of the effects upon the productive capacity of the country."

"We have seen that, if a country is to make payments abroad, it must earn, by means of exports, or services, the foreign money required. But this foreign exchange derived from the sale of goods abroad is, in the first instance, owned by private citizens and not by the Government. It is therefore, necessary for the Government to raise taxes, in domestic currency, with which to buy the necessary foreign exchange. That is to say, it must raise money from its citizens generally in order to be able to buy from some of its citizens the bills which have come into their possession as a result of sales of goods abroad."

Two Stages in the Process.

"Thus there are two stages in the process—one is the budget problem and the other is the foreign exchange problem, often referred to as the transfer problem. A surplus is necessary in the budget in order that the Government may have revenue with which to buy foreign bills of exchange. And a surplus is also necessary in foreign trade if the requisite foreign exchange is to be available for purchase by the Government."

"Just as a debtor country, in order to make a foreign debt payment, must sell to foreigners more goods and services than it buys from foreigners, so a creditor nation, in order to receive a complete payment, must be prepared to buy from foreigners more goods and services than it sells to them. . . . If the United States is to receive payments from a foreign debt, or the American people must import more goods than they export, for only thus will the necessary dollars be available in the foreign exchange market for purchase by the debtor Government."

"The utilization of a country's domestic securities or other property has often been suggested as a means of paying inter-governmental obligations. A moment's reflection will suggest that the international debts in question are the debts evidenced by domestic securities—in the form of Government bonds. In any given case the creditor nation might possibly prefer to receive in lieu of the obligations of the debtor Government the obligations of the railroads, public utilities or other corporations in the debtor country. Indeed, this was done temporarily under the Dawes plan. But such a shifting of the form of the obligation in no sense changes the nature of the problem of payment."

"Nor is the problem in any way changed by the so-called 'commodification' of inter-governmental debts. The hope was long entertained that the allied governments might sell German reparations bonds in the world's money market. While such a transaction might well be advantageous to the creditor governments, it would merely result, from the debtor's point of view, in a substitution of private commercial and financial creditors for the public creditors, without in any way changing the nature of the problem of making payments."

"There only remains for consideration the possibility of liquidating inter-governmental debts through new borrowing operations. In this manner the original debt

National Chamber Says Government Carries on Commercial Ventures Without Regard to Losses

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—An attack on what was described as Governmental competition with private business was renewed today by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, with the assertion it would continue the fight until its "objective is accomplished."

Accompanied by a long recitation of what the organization considers abuses of the Constitution, the statement was contained in a special report presented to the chamber's directors by a committee of which Henry D. Sharpe of Providence, R. I., is chairman.

"The Government's operations are carried on without regard to the elements of profit or loss, which are unavoidable in private business," the committee said. "The Government can, and does furnish, the funds which are employed, largely from taxation, without requiring or expecting payment of interest, alone dividends, out of business."

"It is obvious, therefore, that in any field of business in which the Government chooses to enter, private business will be proportionately eliminated—not by reason of the relative merits of the two forms, but because of the unfair advantages received by the former."

Proposed Restrictions.

Among specific recommendations of the committee were: "The Federal Government should not engage in any form of business or service except for purposes limited to the necessities of the proper administration of Government functions which are pursuant to the provisions of the Constitution."

"If under any circumstances the Government engages in any form of activity in competition with private enterprise, or in substitution for private enterprise, it has an obligation to ascertain exactly and completely the needs and make them promptly and readily available to all members of the public."

SPLIT IN ENGLISH CABINET
OVER OTTAWA TRADE PACTS

Most of Liberal Members Expected to Resign Wednesday When Discussion Opens.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—It is virtually taken for granted here that most of the Liberal members of the National Cabinet will resign Wednesday when the Government opens its discussion of the recently concluded trade agreements at Ottawa. Conservative colleagues are making efforts to induce the Liberals, under the leadership of Sir Herbert Samuel, the Home Secretary, and Sir Archibald Sinclair, Secretary for Scotland, to remain at their posts.

The Liberals probably will take with them, however, Lord Snowden, Lord Privy Seal, the former Chancellor of the Exchequer, who has consistently fought for free trade. There is no danger, it was understood, that Sir John Simon, the Foreign Secretary, and his small Liberal group, will bolt.

The Liberals have criticized the Ottawa pact as committing the Government to too drastic a tariff policy.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald is expected to weather the storm because of the heavy straight Conservative majority in the House of Commons. This majority is said to favor the agreements themselves.

Rumania Changes League Envoy.

By the Associated Press.
BUCHAREST, Rumania, Sept. 26.—It was officially confirmed today that Nicholas Titulescu no longer will head the Rumanian delegation to the League of Nations. Virgil Madgearu, Minister of Trade, who left for Geneva today, will succeed him. The change followed the failure of efforts to reconcile his views with those of the Government on the Russian pact of non-aggression. Titulescu is convinced that the Kellogg pact is sufficient; the Government would rather conclude a separate pact.

U. S. AID IN EXPORT OF WHEAT PROPOSED

Hoover Confers With Officials on Loan to Promote Sale to China.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Federal aid in an attempt to sell many millions of bushels of privately owned Northwestern wheat to China was discussed by President Hoover and high Government officials yesterday.

Although definite figures were not available, it was said that the proposed sale might amount to 15,000,000 bushels or more.

It was learned that there was discussion of a possible loan of $5,000,000 of Reconstruction Finance Corporation funds either directly to China or to the Farmers' National Grain Corporation, to finance the export of this wheat.

Reconstruction Corporation officials said they knew of no direct application for such an amount, either from China or the Grain Corporation, and no decision on this point was reached at the White House conference.

Those with the chief executive during the discussion were Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, C. E. Denman and Charles S. Wilson, members of the Farm Board; Chairman Atlee Pomerene of the Reconstruction Corporation, and Jesse Jones, Gardner Cowles, Wilson MacCarthy and Harvey Couch, all directors of the corporation.

Chairman Stone of the Farm Board, who has been ill for several days, was not present.

China to Get Three-Year Credit on Wheat Deal.

By the Associated Press.
SHANGHAI, Sept. 26.—The sale of 15,000,000 bushels of American wheat or flour to China, a deal involving approximately $5,000,000 in gold, appeared assured today, as M. S. Briggs, representative of the United States Grain Stabilization Corporation, who is conducting the negotiations with the representatives of the national Government, is reported to have progressed so far that the Chinese expect the initial shipment to leave the United States next month.

Briggs and other Americans here said they looked upon the project as a mark of definite progress in the creation of a permanent American wheat market in China, possibilities for which they considered almost unlimited.

LEAGUE ON TRIAL
AT ARMS PARLEY,
DE VALERA SAYS

Without Progressive Disarmament, Survival Is Almost Impossible, He Asserts.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Sept. 26.—The League of Nations is a defendant "at the bar of public opinion," President Eamon de Valera of the Irish Free State said in opening the League's general assembly meeting today, and there is on it, he said, "a burden of justification which is overwhelming." De Valera said the only way to silence the critics who charge the League is impotent or decadent is to execute the obligations of the League covenant on all states, whether weak or strong.

Criticism, much of which he said was justified, comes from all sides, he said, but the League must prove its value to survive.

The success or failure of the arms conference, he said, will be a measure of the confidence which the League merits, adding that "without progressive disarmament, it is almost impossible that the League could survive."

In a portion of his speech, in which he mentioned no names, but which was generally taken to refer to the problem of Japan's military campaigns in Manchuria and also the European disarmament controversy, De Valera said: "The only alternative to competitive armaments is the security for national rights which an uncompromising adherence to the principles of the covenant will afford."

The Common Interest.

"Avoidance of war and the burdens of preparatory armaments is such a concern of humanity that no state should be permitted to jeopardize the common interest by selfish action contrary to the covenant. No state is powerful enough to stand long against the League if the League and its peoples are determined the covenant shall be upheld."

De Valera also touched upon the Irish situation in his speech. "Speaking for my own country," he said, "I am confident if we are left free to pursue our own policy we shall succeed not only in securing a proper adjustment of our own social and economic life, but in being able to contribute more than our share to human progress throughout the world."

"We in Ireland desire peace."

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my settlement will make no difference in its cardinal principles that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate corruption, always fight for the rights of the people, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunder, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely existing, always be drastically independent, never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Not Binding in Conscience.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch: THE platform of the Republican party expressly states that its prohibition plank is not binding in conscience.

This formal exemption is something new in our political history. While a certain margin of reservation is understood respecting religious or political doctrine, yet any member of a church or political party who violates in practice its principles or teachings lays himself liable to discipline or even expulsion.

Tolerance usually means a lack of conviction. There is no toleration where belief is deep and vital. The Republican party has no positive belief or conviction on the eighteenth amendment. It, therefore, makes room for such wide-apart extremists as President Nicholas Murray Butler and Senator William E. Borah. It may well be that political exigencies make this liberalism expedient. The Eastern contingent of the party is wet, while the Western contingent is dry. The party must needs, therefore, carry water on one shoulder and wine on the other. Thus we have the anomaly of President Hoover declaring for repeal, with an impossible proviso, and Vice-President Curtis coming out flat-footedly against repeal, while the G. O. P. blesses both.

The Democratic party is beset with diversity of views quite as distressing as its rival. But it meets the situation in more positive and frank fashion. On the whole, the Northern element of the Democratic party is wet, while the Southern re-enforcement is, or has been, dry. And yet the platform faces the situation with refreshing frankness. It comes out categorically for repeal. This declaration, naturally enough, will give offense to many of its members. Under no conditions is every member strictly bound in conscience by every declaration of his party. He can either surrender his individual judgment for the larger view, or he may fall outside the breastworks and incur party disfavor or discipline. But never before has there been invited diversity within party ranks. This is strangely out of harmony with the historical method of the Grand Old Party which, from the beginning, constituted a fraternity of those holding like views on great moral issues. The Republican party built up on the basis of two great political principles—universal liberty and the protective tariff. Deviation from these doctrines threw the dissenting outside of the fold.

Even today, a very narrow attitude of liberty is allowed the press and the West. They have been branded by orthodox opinion as "the wild jackasses" who do not belong to the fold. Borah, La Follette and Norris are certainly not granted license to exploit their economic doctrines according to their own conscience and still remain as un-censured members of the party.

This dalliance with prohibition puts the Republican party at a great moral disadvantage in the estimation of those who have deep conviction on the question. While, in the estimation of the genuine drys, honors, or rather dishonors, are even between the parties on this issue, yet the Democrats have the advantage of courage and frankness. You know where they stand. They are willing to stand up and be shot at. But the Grand Old Party has not a dry and a wet exposure, according to local political exigencies. This is certainly a pitiable plight for a party whose historic glory and grandeur rest upon its undeviating devotion to moral convictions.

Washington, D. C. KELLY MILLER.

Advice to Farmers.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch: HERE is expert advice seriously given to the farmers, who haven't had much advice lately:

"Get off the marginal lands, cut down your acreage, plow less and sell less. Flow under every third row. Practice diversification, and give away or burn or throw into the rivers or sea a goodly percentage of your corn, cotton, wheat, coffee, vegetables and fruit. Destroy the results of your labor applied to the land and your stock. Back to the farm! Thus millions of the city exploited, the moneyless, the poor and also the unemployed consumers shall certainly pay you higher prices."

"Then for your final salvation, be sure to go to the polls and vote, vote! It matters not for whom or what you vote, so long as you vote capitalistic. Vote for me, John Brown. I am your friend! But if you cannot conscientiously vote for me, then vote for that rascal, my friend, James Black. He also says he is your friend!"

"By no means become idealistic and throw your vote away by voting for Norman Thomas and a just social system, which is fitting for angels, perhaps, but too humane for humans, for no country this side of the Milky Way as yet has such system in full running order. It wouldn't be democratic. Only a capitalist system of exploitation can be democratic."

"Therefore, endure, my children, endure! Be patient, as your fathers were patient. Suffer and starve and wait and independence a while longer, for my boss and I are not quite ready for the reckoning. For it is even doubtful that you cannot make an evil tree bring forth good fruit."

All the foregoing from experts, heard and reported by DR. OTTO VIERLING.

DR. BUTLER'S LIQUOR PLAN.

It is gratifying to note that Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, in his interesting article on the control of the liquor traffic, if and when Federal prohibition is abolished, takes the stand of the Post-Dispatch that every vestige of Federal prohibition must be eliminated from the Federal Constitution. This, he says, is precedent to any plan of control by the states. The first two paragraphs of his article follow:

It is essential to the success of any plan for state liquor traffic control that the eighteenth amendment be unconditionally repealed. Responsibility must be single and undivided. Any attempt to retain or to extend Federal control over state action in respect to the liquor traffic, except as heretofore and now possessed under the interstate commerce clause, is doomed to failure and worse. It is not only wholly impracticable, but it attempted would still further confuse the whole situation, undermine the principles of the Constitution as much as does the eighteenth amendment itself and throw the liquor problem into politics for another generation with evil results which no one is wise enough to foresee.

It is quite idle to talk of a Federal guarantee against the "return" of the saloon. The operation of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead Act have surely made that perfectly plain. The saloon has not "gone" anywhere; it has only married the speakeasy and taken its wife's name. A hundred constitutional amendments and a thousand congressional statutes could not abolish the saloon. It can only be gotten rid of, as it will be gotten rid of, by local sentiment operating through local authority under a system which outlaws the liquor traffic when conducted for private profit.

Dr. Butler then outlines his plan of liquor control by the states, based largely upon the Quebec plan and conditional on the complete restoration to the state of "the right to the exercise of its police power to deal with the liquor traffic within its boundaries as it sees fit." The essential point of the plan is to take all private profit out of the liquor traffic after the liquor comes into possession of the state, which should regulate both its manufacture and sale. The state will have full power to control the liquor traffic and, of course, Congress will still have power to deal with interstate commerce in liquor and to protect, as before Federal prohibition, states that retain prohibition from shipments of liquor across their borders.

Under the plan suggested, the states would be divided into districts, controlled by intelligent and efficient officers, to permit the purchase of liquor by citizens for home use, regulated, of course. All distilled liquors should be heavily taxed and sold at high prices. Wine and beer should be sold cheaply, in order to lessen the consumption of highly intoxicating beverages and to promote the taste for lighter beverages—wine and beer. Of course, any state has the right to have prohibition. Dr. Butler's theory is that prohibition, as we have found in the case of the eighteenth amendment and Volstead Act, whets the appetite for prohibited liquor; while freedom to buy for home consumption, as experience has proved, reduces the desire for it.

With the eighteenth amendment repealed, every state could do as it pleases with regard to the handling of the liquor problem, but Dr. Butler urges consideration of a plan which would eliminate the fatal element of Federal prohibition, restore the rights of the states, restore individual liberty and the right of citizens to use alcoholic beverages in accordance with individual desire. Whatever revenue may be derived from the sale of liquor under this plan would belong to the state. Private profit would be eliminated, so that there would be no urge to force sales or consumption.

Dr. Butler disposes completely of President Hoover's declaration that there should be constitutional guarantees against the return of the saloon, on the ground that we have tried guarantees against the sale or consumption of liquor in any form through the eighteenth amendment, and it has proved a complete and disastrous failure. True guarantees lie in enlightened public opinion and in the effective action of states to prevent the opening of any saloon for private profit or the consumption of any liquor on the premises where it is sold.

The suggestion of the plan is interesting, and, in view of the increasing demand on the part of the people for the abolition of Federal prohibition, is worthy of consideration. Taking prohibition completely out of the Constitution and limiting Federal power strictly to interstate commerce in this matter puts upon the states the duty of solving the liquor problem. Any suggestion as to how they can do it effectively to reduce the use and abuse of liquor is to the point now.

The plan suggested by Dr. Butler has, in practical form, been tried and found effective. It has been tried in Canada and in some European states. When the disastrous and futile attempt to enforce Federal prohibition is abandoned and the states have the problem of handling the liquor traffic, it should be done in a way that will restore individual liberty, promote temperance and prevent the abuses that grow out of the saloon, the speakeasy and bootlegging.

Dr. Butler has at least offered a valuable suggestion to this end. The states have a concrete plan upon which their Legislatures may work to accomplish the desired results.

THE JOB-SHARING CAMPAIGN.

Viewed as an emergency step, there is great promise of good results from the job-sharing campaign recently launched, under the leadership of Walter C. Teagle, as part of the administration's reconstruction program. As a permanent measure, however, there is danger of grave injustices to labor. The unemployment situation has so many varying phases that at tackling it on only one front is exceedingly poor strategy. Job-sharing efforts will offer temporary relief at a critical time, but the outcome of the entire battle is not to be decided by this single offensive.

The American Federation of Labor, in its campaign for the six-hour day and five-day week, also proposes work-sharing, but with the eventual goal of weekly pay equivalent to that received before the reduction of working time. The administration's job-sharing drive has little interest in this important phase. Mr. Teagle admits that, "of course, we don't want the standard of present workers cut below the cost of living," but adds, "It is a job for the individuals and the district committees." The United States Chamber of Commerce, in endorsing the 40-hour week, also says nothing about wage rates.

Most of the benefits of work-sharing will come at the expense of the workers, an unequal division of the burden that nullifies the plan's usefulness as a permanent solution. Employed persons are meeting the situation cheerfully, however, and gladly make the sacrifices that will provide work for their jobless fellows.

The country's great relief need in the coming winter.

ter offers a convincing argument for immediate job-sharing. Every person put to work by means of this expedient represents a lightening of the relief burden. As an instance of what may be done, the American Petroleum Institute, which has enlisted in the campaign, estimates that the industry, by reducing its working schedules to a maximum of 40 hours a week, can increase the number of its employees by 21 per cent. Other industries doubtless can do likewise. There should be immediate surveys as to the possibilities, followed by action to take on more workers.

While the number of men on the payroll must receive major attention at this time, the contents of the pay envelope should not be overlooked in a broad view of the situation. The evils attendant upon wage reduction, with its depression of mass purchasing power, in the long run will leave us no better off than before. Only a more equitable sharing of the machine's profits between employer and worker can bring a permanent remedy.

TO SAVE $150,000 A YEAR.

An important saving in registration costs has been made by the Board of Election Commissioners in dispensing with two clerks in each polling place, leaving four judges to do the work. Even so, it is estimated that the registration will cost the city about $97,660, made up of $13,360 for rental of 870 polling places, $84,334 for judges' pay of $6 per day, $10,056 for clerk hire in the subsequent canvass and $4000 for miscellaneous expenses. The registration, to be held over a four-day period, is the basic quadrennial one, and it follows an expensive supplementary registration, held before the August primaries.

In view of the permanent registration system, now in effect in many states, it is sheer folly and extravagance for St. Louis to cling to the old method. This system, containing adequate safeguards against corruption, enables a voter to put his name on the books, where it remains for life. Changes of residence, of course, require notice to the Election Commissioners. In some places, provision is made for re-registration if a voter fails to exercise his ballot at several successive elections, thus giving him an added incentive for voting.

A study of comparative costs shows that St. Louis could save in the neighborhood of $150,000 annually by permanent registration. Kansas City several times has attempted to obtain legislative authorization for this system. Joplin has such a system. Kansas City will no doubt renew its plea when the next Legislature meets, and it should be joined by St. Louis. Together the two cities should be able to overcome what little opposition there is, particularly since that opposition is of a political character and does not go to the merits of the question.

THE FIGHT OF FIGHTS.

Miltiades did a good job of it the day he turned back that swarthy Persian, Datis, on the Attican plain, and a first rate scrap it was at Chalons where Aetius whaled the plundering racketeer of the Middle Ages, Attila, the Hun. Tours means Charles Martel's struggle to the finish with Abd-er-Rahman, black-browed leader of the Moors, and when night came to Blenheim and Marlborough, the Bavarians had fled and the blue Danube ran red. Arbelas and Hastings, Valmy and Waterloo, fighting men's fights every one of them, and yet tame affairs after all beside that slugging, pounding, beating, growling, kicking, teeth-grashing battle now splintering the main deck of the Blue Squid. We refer, of course, to the matching of brain and brawn between Popeye and Bluto. Never before has the defender of the good, the true and the beautiful met such a foe as this hulking demon of the sea. We are confident the sphinx eater will win, but we aren't saying when. To date the rounds are even and neither shows signs of weakening. In fact, we have taken up a rather perilous perch atop the misseamast, and expect to be there all winter.

BEWILDERED YOUTH.

The world of tomorrow is to fall into the hands of the youth of today. But what are present times doing to youth? An official estimate declares that approximately 200,000 children are today wandering about the country living by their wits. The loss of income has broken up homes and scattered families beyond recall.

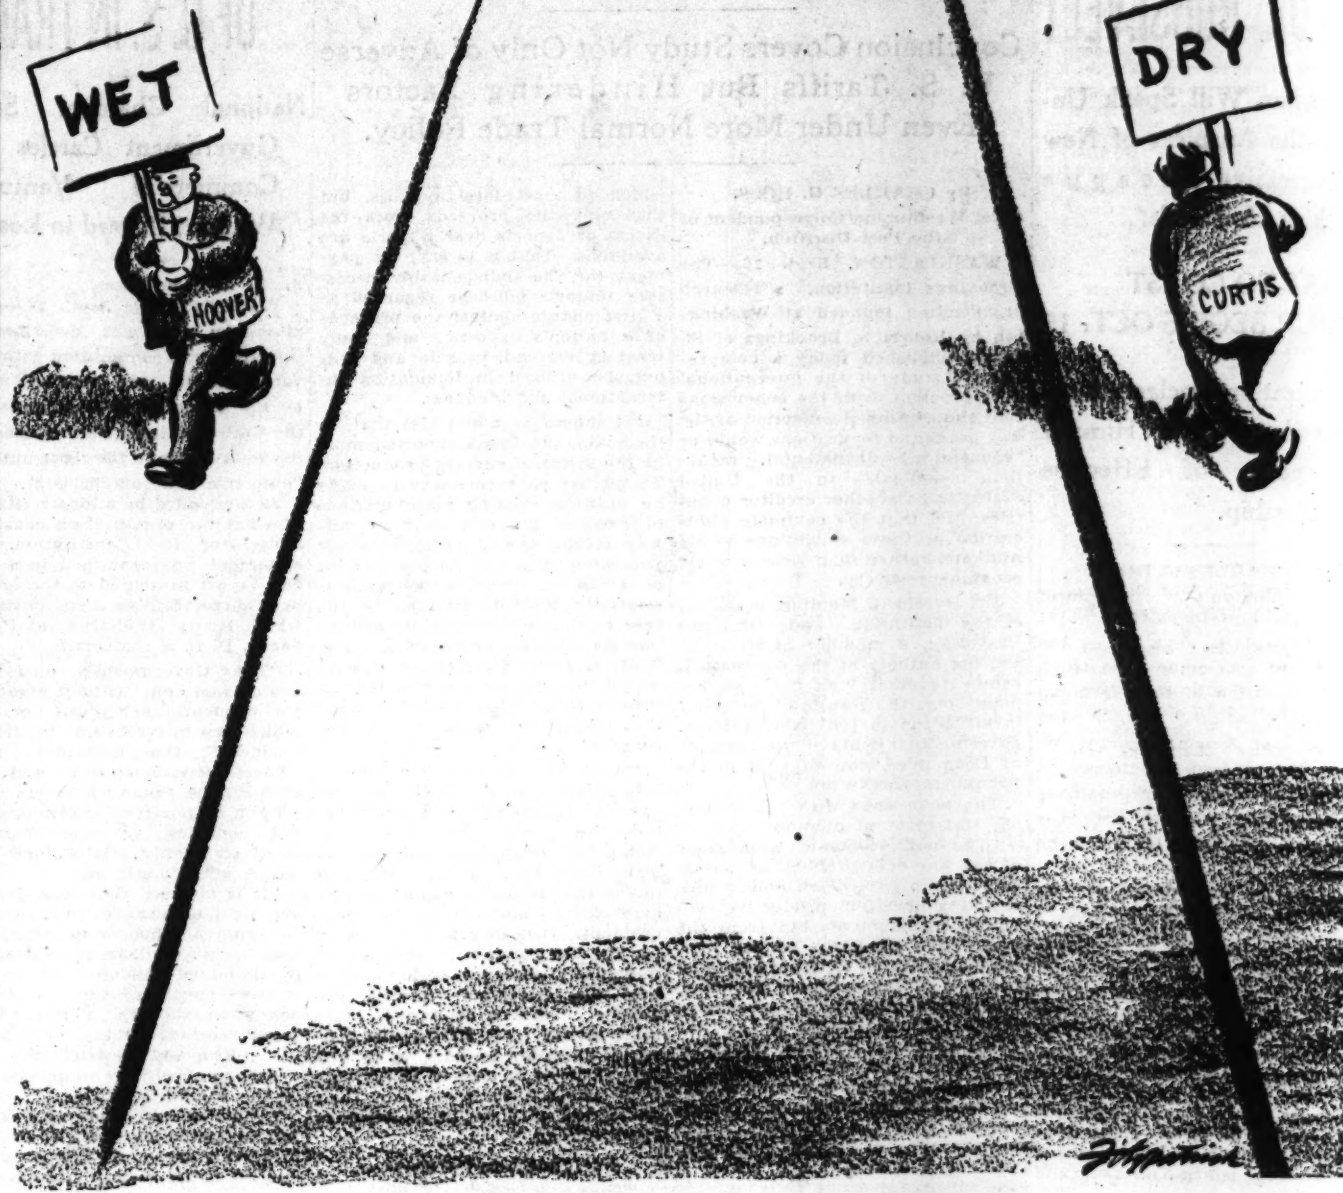

Miss Jessie F. Binford, director of the Chicago Juvenile Protective Association, says that in her city gangs of boys from 15 to 18 years of age venture out nightly to engage in petty thievery. There is the more general situation of youths ready to step from school to self-support with, alas! nowhere to stop. To quote Miss Binford again: "The boys and girls find that economic conditions over which they have no control have imposed a blank wall between them and their careers. Just to put in time in the city month after month, year after year, with no money and no hope of earning any, is a frightful thing."

It is easier to prescribe remedies than to make them effective. Energetic and skillful organization, however, can work marvels, even, perhaps, to turning this gap in the lives of youth to gain rather than destruction. By putting occupational and cultural schools, libraries and recreation centers to work overtime, it is conceivable that a better introduction to life might be given to the young than a quick and thoughtless transition, as in prosperous times, from school to just any job, however promising or blighting to the future.

BANNING A SOCIALIST MAGAZINE.

Inasmuch as the Communists have come along to take the place of the Socialists as the anathema of those who would preserve the social order inviolate, it might be expected that the latter would now find themselves more hospitably treated by the Government. Such seems not to be the case. Their radio station, WEVD, so designated in honor of Eugene V. Debs, is continuously in hot water, its operators never sure of their license. Just now the Socialists are protesting against the banning from the mails of their official political organ, America for All. According to Edward Levinson, its editor, postal authorities have delayed action on the application for mailing rights despite the fact that every official requirement was met by the paper. If the mailing privilege is being withheld for political reasons, the intention must be to hinder the Socialist cause in the present campaign. But it should be obvious that such tactics defeat their purpose. They make Socialists. As for America for All, we have read an issue and see nothing in it which calls for the violation of freedom of the press. Our guess is that the postal authorities gave it only a glance. Otherwise, the irresistibly funny cartoons of Art Young would have prompted them to give it wide circulation.

War is again raging along the filling-station front.

WORKING BOTH SIDES OF THE STREET.

Perils of Political Prophesying

Political experts, candidates and national committees have a long record of wrong guesses on outcome of presidential elections; wisecracks can't even pick doubtful states with certainty, for all conceded California to G. O. P. in 1916; changeable-ness of voters explains uncertainty, for September is not always index to November.

Charles Willis Thompson, Veteran Political Writer, in the Commonweal.

ABOUT this time, as the almanacs used to say, look out for the question, "Who is going to be elected?" In fact, every political specialist gets it all through the early stages of the campaign, which begin in early spring and last until late September and often later. How perilous it is to classify the doubtful states in the early or even late stages is proved by the fact that in 1918 nobody dreamed that California, which decided the election by voting for Wilson, was a doubtful state—not even on election day. At this moment Massachusetts is a doubtful state, but may be a dead certainty within a month; and so it goes. It becomes a duty to inform the public that not until much later will anybody know, and that even at the last moment very few will come within gunshot of certainty.

Experts! When I first adventured into national politics in the last century, it was as a pupil of E. G. Dunning, the sage expert of the New York Times, famed for keeping his feet on the ground and never being wrong. His nickname, however, was "Keep-your-eye-on-Iowa Dunning." I inquired, and found that in the campaign of 1888 the Times had sent the old sage through the "doubtful" states to report what his magic eye (and it was magic) found. Sojourning in Iowa and getting the straightest of tips, he became convinced it was doubtful and likely to go for Cleveland; so he began his dispatch, "Keep your eye on Iowa." When it went for Harrison by the usual routing of Republican majority, that monicker was fixed on him. It never left him.

In 1912 Samuel G. Blythe produced, for the Saturday Evening Post, a decisive article mourning over the passing of Theodore Roosevelt, how poor Roosevelt wouldn't carry a single Republican state primary and was gone for good. As it taken a few weeks to be elected was Calvin Coolidge, and even that uncanny calculator did not feel sure of it until 10 days before the election of 1924. With that exception, nobody knows or has known until the first Wednesday after the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November. If anybody did, the campaign would not exhaust themselves by campaigning. It is trying work, and the Borahs and the Pat Harrisones would stay home and rest. Of course they do know more than Jack-in-the-Box; but as Mr. Dooley said, "I'm the only man who knows anything about (whatever the subject was) an I know now!"

Who could have predicted, in 1916, that a turnover of 1500 votes in Republican California would elect Wilson? The election crowds that night went home sure that Hughes had been elected. Who could have predicted that a turnover of 375 votes in New York would elect Cleveland in 1884, and defeat Blaine, who by all the signs should have been elected?

September is no index to November. Already Hoover's dogged three-year fight against depression is leading the uncertain back. To Norman Thomas I said, "A bolt in August is seldom a bolt in November." He answered, with a meaning smile arising from many experiences, "Don't I know it?" He is too experienced a man to count on the summer bolters staying put in his camp in November.

and Henry Cabot Lodge, no mean politician, thought Alton B. Parker would surely beat them; and Roosevelt was elected by a monumental landslide. Parker didn't even carry his own state and was the first Democrat since reconstruction to lose Missouri. In 1928, Al Smith thought he was going to be elected—"Look what happened to me," he said at the recent Democratic convention.

National committees! Here is Chairman Farley conceding that Hoover will carry Maine and Vermont only. In 1884, the Republican National Committee honestly believed for days that Blaine had been elected. But the classic instance is 1876, when the Republican National Committee closed up shop early and went to bed on election night, convinced that Tilden had won. William E. Chandler, studying the returns in the small hours, got doubtful, and he and John C. Reid (managing editor of the Times) went up to committee headquarters and roused the chairman, Zachariah Chandler, out of a sound sleep. After listening to their figures for a while, the chairman grew more hopeful, and sent a claim-everything dispatch to the "doubtful" states. The Republican candidate was ultimately elected, by the help of Democratic votes in Congress.

This year, some people will vote against Hoover because he didn't pardon Tom Mooney, who no President has the power to do, or for him because they don't like some Tammany Alderman whom Hoover never heard of. In 1928, I knew of a Democrat who voted against Smith because the State Legislature (which was Republican) had cut down his pay and that of others in his line of work.

The only candidate I have met in many years of campaigning who knew he was going to be elected was Calvin Coolidge, and even that uncanny calculator did not feel sure of it until 10 days before the election of 1924. With that exception, nobody knows or has known until the first Wednesday after the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November. If anybody did, the campaign would not exhaust themselves by campaigning. It is trying work, and the Borahs and the Pat Harrisones would stay home and rest. Of course they do know more than Jack-in-the-Box; but as Mr. Dooley said, "I'm the only man who knows anything about (whatever the subject was) an I know now!"

Who could have predicted, in 1916, that a turnover of 1500 votes in Republican California would elect Wilson? The election crowds that night went home sure that Hughes had been elected. Who could have predicted that a turnover of 375 votes in New York would elect Cleveland in 1884, and defeat Blaine, who by all the signs should have been elected?

No More "Normalcy"

From the Monroe County (Mo.) Appeal.

WE hear a good deal of talk about how things will be when they get back to normal. But that time will never come. It will never come because neither labor nor industry will return to conditions which obtained a few years ago, no matter how times may improve.

Enforced idleness has given laborers much leisure time, something they never had before. They have learned how nice it is to stick around home until the middle of the morning instead of grabbing a dinner pail and rushing off to work when the clock strikes eleven. They have experienced the delights of going to ball or golf games in the middle of the afternoon, or to a good fishing place, or for a drive out into the country, or for the cultivation of vegetables and flowers in backyard plots when they used to be watching the clock and wishing for the signal to bring eight or 10 hours of toil to an end for the day. Those who have been on half time are now convinced that a half time is enough, provided arrangements can be made for full-time pay for half-time work.

Everywhere men are agitating for the shorter day or the shorter week, some of them because they want more leisure, others because they have come to realize that no other plan holds out hope for enough employment to take up the slack. The labor movement has always tended toward this end. First, the day's work was reduced from 12 hours to 10. Then, after many strikes, much violence and prolonged effort, came the eight-hour day. Next will come the five-hour or the six-hour day. It will mean more jobs for those who need them and more leisure for those who labor with their hands.

Public sentiment for the change grows more insistent every day, not because the public is particularly interested in converting laboring people into a leisure class, but because the public sees in the shorter day the only remedy for unemployment. Until the millions now out of work begin to get pay checks, their buying power will remain non-existent and the selling power of the nation cannot improve. Incidentally, the shorter day, with more time for diversion and self-culture, is an idea we get from Soviet Russia.

Industry and finance, of course, will never get back to normal—meaning as things used to be—because this nation will not tolerate a repetition of the abuses it has suffered at their hands during the last 12 years. There will be a change for the better in every line of endeavor in due time, but the "normalcy" of the Coolidge-Hoover era has gone, never to return.

CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS.

From the Kansas City Times. CONSTITUTIONAL rights being what they are in America, it stands to reason that they should be preserved in all cases whatsoever. That is not quite the position taken by a group of several hundred striking miners who were frustrated in an attempt to hold a mass meeting in a park at Taylorville, Ill. Naturally, there was indignation, and the strikers moved over into an adjoining county and held a meeting, adopting a resolution about freedom of speech and assembly, and protesting that constitutional rights had been denied at Taylorville. That seemed clear enough. But at the same time the resolution was adopted, the strikers were urged by their leader to see to it that no mines in the territory opened.

But the right to work is as constitutional as the right of free speech. If the strikers insist on the one constitutional right for themselves, they cannot consistently deny the other to those who want to work.

HAVE you taken a chance on an automobile, or a gallon of gas, or a can of baking powder, or what ever it is that is being given away this week? Everybody is doing it—giving away something we need—and the man who purchases a meal or a package of cigarettes or a liter of tooth paste, can go home loaded down with coupons entitling him to a chance on something new. And every day in the week. Also he will probably go home with writer's cramp because it is a difficult matter to get out of a store or a restaurant without signing his name and address and telephone number to a ticket. It is that address and telephone number which is the backbone of several of these promotion schemes. Somehow, somehow, manage to keep within the lottery laws. These names and numbers are valuable to the compilers of so called "sucker lists" and with a cool hundred thousand or more a day being gathered in the promoters of some of the schemes are causing a violent upturn in the filling cabinet business. It is a great list, too. Not just a bunch of names selected from the directory at random but miles and miles of persons who are spending money every day. The better stores, running their own automobile-a-week idea, are guarding their lists carefully for their own perfectly legitimate purposes, but other promoters, with no very certain knowledge of where the prize they are offering is going to come from, are looking forward to a mail and telephone selling campaign which will give the coupon signers a busy winter listening to all sorts of propositions.

RANK BUCK, the "Bring 'Em Back Alive" man, whose thrilling story of his wild animal hunt appeared in the Post-Dispatch before it was sent out into the moving picture palaces and who is coming here in a day or two with his mile or more of cellophane animals, and the state of jungle beasts has declined rapidly in the last few years the expression and other things being that they are. A baby elephant on the hoof and laid down in the St. Louis Zoo, a word now only $1000 with lions selling for $100 and tigers, dead or alive, at a new low for all time at $200. But a 10-foot python, alive and wriggling, has been sold for $1000. The death of a camera man, brings $50 a running foot.

ST. LOUIS has become quite a stopping off place for the movie stars. They are coming here to the cinema, high lights take to the air for their cross country journeys now and then the transcontinental trip gives them anywhere from 15 minutes to an hour at Lambert-St. Louis. Field with changing planes. Most of 'em escape notice for most of 'em prefer to be alone while traveling and don't want to be bothered with the names or, sometimes, under their real names which mean nothing to the movie fans. Occasionally they are spotted. Mary Pickford came through in a short time ago and broke into print. Last week Loretta Goddard, who, according to Gold Coast rumors will be the next Mrs. Charles Chaplin, slipped in and was whisked away again without attracting any attention except from the aviation field mechanics who admired her dazzling beauty without knowing who she was. Any day now no less a personage than Gary Cooper and Countess Di Frasso will come through. Wallace Beery, fixer his own ship, frequently lights here for gas and Will Rogers occasionally makes the hop. Others come and go almost daily without any of the usual catarrhal customers being any the wiser.

HAROLD LLOYD was the latest fleeting visitor. It was not surprising that no one recognized Lloyd who is bound for Europe on a long vacation. Without his trademark—the hornrimmed spectacles which are glasses and which he never wears when he is not making a picture—the common crowd could stand for hours at Grand boulevard and Olive street without a single flapper or auto-graph hunter paying the least attention. Lloyd does not look like the popular conception of a film star. Well groomed he could pass for a young business man of any sort. With all years of picture making, with all of his trials, have left him without a gray hair in his head. His locks are coal black, his features dark and his face tanned almost to an African hue by long exposure to the sun. There is none of the wise cracking which abounds in his plays when Lloyd is facing the camera. He quite suggests when the day's work is done and when the pictures—it's a long time between one every two years or so—his retirement from the business. He works like a Trojan in his films and plays just as hard on his big estate in Beverly Hills, with his three children, Gloria, Peggy, 7 and Harold, Jr., who is just 17 months, and with Mrs. Lloyd, known to the screen once as Mildred Davis. Their marriage has been one of the few continuing romances of Hollywood. On the Lloyd place is a swimming pool, a nine-hole golf course and a hand ball court. It is his home is a private, but complete theater so that none of the family need wander very far afield for entertainment.

$58,000 MISSING FROM BANK

No Trace Found of Allentown (N. J.) Teller.
By the Associated Press.
TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 25.—A check-up by officials of the Farmers' National Bank of Allentown, N. J., showed that a total of $58,000 in cash and bonds is missing. State police reported yesterday. No trace has yet been found of Morgan N. Buckwalter, teller of the bank, for whom a police arrest was made after the disappearance of the funds. As far as could be learned, no warrant had been issued for his arrest.

GERMAN FARM RELIEF

MEASURES EXTENDED

Import Quotas on Several Items of Produce Included in Regulations.

By the Associated Press.

MUNICH, Bavaria, Sept. 25.—New regulations intended to relieve the distress of farmers throughout Germany and including import quota restrictions on several items of produce was announced here today by Baron Friedrich Eder von Eder, Minister of Agriculture in the Von Papen Cabinet.

The measures also include reduction by two per cent of the interest rates on long-term mortgages for the next two years, providing, however, that the rate not be cut to less than four per cent and that the amount of the reductions be refunded on maturity of the mortgages.

The import quotas are to be placed on cattle for slaughter, bacon, lard, butter, cheese, lumber, paper pulp and several kinds of fruits and vegetables. The whole is part of Von Papen's plan for farm relief.

Addressing the Bavarian Agricultural Council, Baron von Eder said the agricultural industry in Germany had been working for the last three years at a loss of about $300,000,000 a year and that the chief cause was foreign "dumping."

The measure of the quotas, he said, would be fixed by separate negotiations with the states concerned and he added that, however necessary it might be to stimulate Germany's industrial activity, it must not be done at the farmers' expense, especially as next year's grain crops are expected to exceed domestic requirements.

Shot Entering Filling Station.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Sept. 25.—James Viackie, 18 years old, of Glenn Falls, N. Y., was shot as he attempted to break into a filling station nine miles west of here on Highway 40, last night. Viackie was shot through the abdomen by J. B. Kerby, owner of the filling station, when he was caught by Kerby trying to enter through a window.

ADVOCATED TO AID ECONOMIC RECOVERY

obligations would be liquidated; but obviously a new debt would be created in their place, leaving the total indebtedness unchanged. . . . One can borrow from Peter to pay Paul, but he cannot get out of debt by the process.

On International Trade.

The book emphasizes the thesis that the post-war trade policies of the major powers are in fundamental opposition to the programs of reparation and debt payment which have been followed.

Analysis of the relation of the war debt to the international trade processes enables the authors to maintain that this country would be benefited economically by the elimination of the debts from the international situation. The assertion that collection of the war debts serves to restrict European purchasing power in American markets, thus depressing the price of producing areas as the cotton and wheat growing states and many important manufacturing industries. The losses resulting to the Treasury from international depression are held to outweigh by far the obvious gains to the Treasury from debt collections.

The implications of the post-war position of this country as a leading creditor power are examined and the conclusion is reached that: "Even if the war debt problem were removed as a complicating factor, our position as a creditor on private account must inevitably involve trade readjustments of considerable magnitude. We must increase our imports relatively to our exports until we have the import surplus by means of which alone international debts of any kind can be paid."

The study attacks the fallacy of the contention that this country could reorganize its economy to achieve independence of the outside world, from international depression as the result of accepted trade of the United States and Europe, is relatively unimportant to American prosperity. "There never was a more complete economic fallacy than the one now prevalent—that this country can turn its back on Europe and prosper by so doing."

An Economic Relationship.

The historical chapters uphold the consistency and the accuracy of the official claim that there is no legal connection between war debt and reparation payments. But while there is no legal connection between the two sets of obligations, either inherently or as a result of accepted agreement, there is between them so important an economic relationship that the legal aspects of the problem have very little realistic significance. It is, therefore, a counsel of the tendency of executive policy in this country has been definitely and inevitably "toward an articulation of debt payments with reparation receipts."

The authors show that the German reparation payments to date, by an admittedly incomplete accounting, amount to well over $5,000,000,000. It is noted that this sum is more than five times the indemnity exact from France by Germany in 1871, making allowance for the difference in price level between the two periods. The historical analysis also shows that debt payments received by the United States Government to date amount to over $2,500,000,000, be-

10 PRISONERS SAVED IN FIRE

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Sept. 25.—Ten prisoners were marched to safety as flames broke through the roof of the three-story guard house at the U. S. Army barracks here last night. The interior of the building was destroyed, but the brick walls remained standing.

Homes of officers nearby were saved after the Plattsburg fire department was called to aid the barracks fighters. The loss was $15,000.

$8,500,000 Loan Sought by Erie

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—The Erie Railroad Co. today applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to borrow $8,500,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for three years. The money is to be used to pay bills, interest and taxes.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Share prices were lower in a fresh flurry of selling than in the closing minutes of the previous day, with many leaders finishing 2 to 4 points lower. Trading volume quickened on the decline. Sales approximated 2,300,000 shares. A feeble rally in the closing minutes failed to regain much of the ground lost.

Failure of the revenue cabinet, reported last Saturday, to fire speculative enthusiasm for the advance apparently caused holders of the stock to sell heavily. They sold securities fairly heavily after an early opening flurry of buying orders had sent prices up to 1 1/2 points. Railroad stocks were the first to give way, and at the close some of the rails were down several points. Santa Fe, Lackawanna and Union Pacific closed lower and Western Union, Chesapeake and Ohio and Norfolk and Western were down 2 to 3.

American Telephone and American Can both reacted 4 points, but these losses were reduced. U. S. Steel was down 3 and Case 4. Losses of around 4 points were also suffered by Western Union, Du Pont and United Aircraft. General Motors sold off 2 points.

Selling had no direct relation, apparently, to price movements in commodities. Wheat closed unchanged to 1/4 cent bushel higher.

After rallying as much as $1 1/2 a bale, cotton encountered some selling, but a portion of its maximum gains were held. It closed 10 to 20 cents a bale higher on the day.

Foreign exchanges found the dollar firm. British sterling receded 13-16 cent, one of the sharpest declines in recent weeks, to 34 1/2-16 for cables. French francs were off 1/4 percent to 131 1/2-16.

Wall street market commentators scanned the industrial prospect for the coming year. Creditable attention was turned to the coming electric power production figures.

Money renewed at 2 percent.

Orders 4,000,000 Pounds of Copper.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—F. A. Merriek, president of Western Copper Electric & Manufacturing Co., announced that his company had placed orders for 4,000,000 pounds of copper, an amount "far in excess of current general business demands."

This large scale commitment, Mr. Merriek asserted, was influenced by "sound economic factors" and a "firm belief that business has turned the corner," as well as by a desire to stimulate employment in the basic industries.

CHINA TAKES MORE TEXTILES.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—During the first six months of this year, China purchased 1,000,000 yards of U. S. unbleached cotton cloth, more than twice as much as in the corresponding period of last year. This increase was due to the fact that the Chinese government had decided to purchase 1,000,000 yards of U. S. unbleached cotton cloth for its army and navy.

Behind the Screens

Robbin Coons

HOOLYWOOD, Sept. 24.

"M-HO-TEP" — Kong — Igloo — Nagana — Not a code message, that's just a few movie titles, significant because they exemplify a trend toward the ultra-mysterious in film fodder.

Translated (more or less) they mean exciting movie fare.

"M-HO-TEP" is a mummy who 3700 years after being wound in the sheets returns to life. He is of course, Boris Karloff. The story is fantastic in the extreme, the theme suggesting its possibilities for horror and adventure.

THIS is the picture that began as "Cagliostro" until the idea was discarded, and a new tale woven. Karl Freund, the German cameraman who photographed "Vampires" among other famous silent pictures and a number of talkies, is promoted to director for the occasion, and Willy Fogarty, the noted artist, is at work on the sets. So "M-HO-TEP" should be the meeting place of horror and art for a fact.

"Kong" is that secrecy-shrouded creation of Ernest Schoedsack, a conflict of primal horrors and modern man. Kong himself, I gather, is a mighty ape, but I may be wrong on that. "Igloo," as you probably guessed, is just an Eskimo custom, and "Nagana" is plain, ordinary sleeping sickness — to be filmed with Tala Birell and Melvyn Douglas in the leads.

"YUREFAKERTEP" isn't a movie title, but it might serve for the tragedy of a would-be "Egyptian technical authority" who wanted a job on "M-HO-TEP." Rolio Lloyd, directing dialogue, was testing the applicant's knowledge of Egyptian words, and the gibberish aroused his suspicion. "Here's one that sticks me," he said, writing it out, "Yurefakertep."

And it worked. The "authority" translated freely, dwelling on the word's relation to Egyptian gods. Whereupon Lloyd wrote again, "You're a faker, O Tep!" and showed him the applicant's knowledge of Egyptian words, and the gibberish aroused his suspicion. "Here's one that sticks me," he said, writing it out, "Yurefakertep."

If you ask My opinion

Martha Carr

Martha Carr: Saturday's paper appears a call for help, which I have inclosed. Will you please send me the address of "Yvonne"? We are able to do what she asks, up here in this small town; have given the matter long hours of serious consideration. We would like to have a child most any age under school age, to keep for a year, and if anything, to be satisfactory, to adopt. If you have to print something to get her attention, please sign my name. WANTED, A BABY.

You saw, perhaps, that I advised her to see the Red Cross for her particular case. It would be impossible for me to be the go-between in all these cases, to adopt, to hear that it is out of my regular province and I could not take the time to investigate both sides, which I feel should be done. If you wish to adopt a child, I will find in the Children's Aid Society, 414 North Vandeventer avenue, a dependable organization and intelligent source of help. Write Miss Jeanette Halverson, secretary, to whom I now refer my correspondents for advice and help in these matters.

Dear Mrs. Carr: I saw in last evening's paper "Thank You" wanted to know if there was a home in Kansas City for girls. We have a home for girls there (not a private institution), one of the Florence Crittenton homes at 505 West 12th street. I am sending you a card about these homes. They are of inestimable value to rescue and mission workers. A MOTHER.

Almost every church is doing some work of this kind and the pastor, priests and clergymen can always direct those who ask for information.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

You're Not Alone.

THE loneliness—that's the hardest part of it; the feeling that you're going through an experience no one else can share, or even understand.

Thousands of people all around you. Some of them very near and dear to you. And yet you know, you'd swear, that none of them have ever felt as you are feeling.

This fear that dogs you all the time. This feeling of being through with everything. This secret hunger you can't define. This sense that life is turning out all wrong—

No one else, you're positive, has ever felt like this before. If only someone had—if only you could be sure that someone else had faced and, perhaps, conquered such inner desolation—it wouldn't be so hard to stand.

But it is so plain they haven't. Look at their smiles! See how easily they chat; how eagerly they go on to some new adventure.

"They couldn't possibly act like that," you say to yourself, "if they felt as I feel!"

EVERYTHING THAT YOU ARE FEELING, SOMEBODY ELSE HAS FELT. SOMEBODY ELSE IS FEELING RIGHT AT THIS MOMENT.

Those smiling faces are a mask. Your face, also, wears a smile which you know to be a mask. Your real life isn't lived in the open, there in your smiling lips or in your busy hands. All that is just a cover-up. Your real life is lived behind all that, in the secret places of your spirit, alone with your Self.

And what is true of you, is true of all those millions of other beings who, you think, cannot understand. Their real life is also lived in secret.

AND THE THINGS THAT ARE HAPPENING TO YOU IN YOUR SECRET LIFE ARE ALSO HAPPENING TO THEM.

You are not alone. The things you feel are not personal. They are part of all human experience. How do I know? By my own experience.

Once I, too, felt as you are feeling now. I have had a difficult time in the fearful life, crowded with tragic experience, and the most

DAILY STORY FOR CHILDREN

By Mary Graham Bonner

Calling on Quack.
It was hard for Willy Nilly to get into the Duck coupe. It was much too small for him, but he managed to curl himself up a good deal and he hung his legs out of the window.

"How long are you going to be at Quackerville?" Willy Nilly asked. "I really have a great deal to do. My car Two-Ways needs to be fixed, and the sign over my shop needs painting, and I want to fix the roof where it leaks, and the shop needs a good brushing and cleaning, and I must attend to my car."

Willy Nilly seemed always to have so much work ahead of him, but somehow never got around to it.

"Oh, oh, quack, quack!" laughed Mrs. Quack. "Haven't you done any of those things yet? You're going to do all those other day. Whatever have you been doing with yourself?"

"Well," said Willy Nilly, "Piedra Botilla's bird was sick and it needed was to be set free, and"

"You do too much for others!" exclaimed Mrs. Quack. "Now forget about everything this afternoon and just have a nice chat with Mr. Quack. You won't find him very sick."

"Well," said Willy Nilly, "I've no more backbone than a stalk of asparagus cooked in butter, as I should be working right now."

"But if you worked now I wouldn't feel it was right to leave Mr. Quack!" Mrs. Quack quacked loudly. "Ah, here we are, Quacko, my dear. I've brought a visitor to see you."

"And how are you this more-or-less fine day?" Willy Nilly asked Quacko.

"Q-u-a-c-k, q-u-a-c-k," coughed Mr. Quack miserably, "by throat hurts."

tragic experience of all was that constant sense of loneliness, the feeling that nobody else had suffered as I was suffering; nobody else had ever been so bewildered, so discouraged, so empty.

And then I took this job.

And each day, across my desk and into my office, flowed the record of hundreds of other lives. Letters and letters—some written arrogantly on beautiful white paper; some scrawled recklessly on smeared scraps. Faces and faces—some worn defiantly on healthy, strong bodies; some worn like scars on huddles of shamed flesh. Yet each letter and each face revealing its record of a human life.

AND EACH LETTER AND EACH FACE REVEALING THE SAME RECORD—THE IDENTICAL SYMPTOMS OF FEAR AND HATE AND HUNGER AND DESPAIR!

Amazing! Thousands of letters and faces, so dissimilar on the surface, so similar behind the mask. "They couldn't possibly act like that," you say to yourself, "if they felt as I feel!"
